The NOVA XR-5000

Finally, Reduced Injury And Liability In Volatile Situations

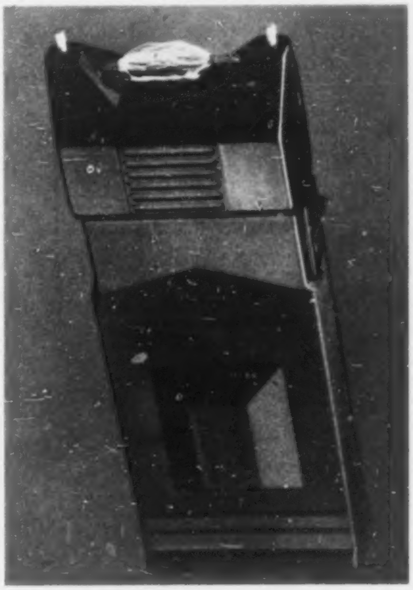
Here's an actual event as described by Jim Laurie, the newspaper photographer who took the above photos.

"This man was berserk, running wild, knocking people down, screaming he was going to kill them! When the officers approached the man was very violent. One of the officers applied the XR-5000. It was amazing! The guy stopped yelling, moving, and went right down. The officer just turned him over after he sank and handcuffed him. This all happened on a crowded street with a lot of people around. I feel it could have been a very dangerous situation, but the officers stopped it instantly, and the way they applied the NOVA XR-5000 was so smooth and fast that it was hardly noticeable. It's one terrific tool for the police."

Often times an arrest in public leads to a hostile reaction from the crowd. If an officer subdues the suspect with a non-lethal, low profile XR-5000, his risk of creating a volatile situation is significantly reduced. Chances are that the crowd will not even be aware that the XR-5000 was applied. NOVA TECHNOLOGIES, INC. is committed to reducing the level of violence between law enforcement and the community it serves.

The NOVA XR-5000 is now in daily use with several hundred local, state and federal law enforcement agencies. There have been thousands of applications in the field with no significant injuries reported. Extensive testing by leading medical authorities at major universities have proven the safety of the XR-5000. Tests have verified that the NOVA will not affect either the heart or a cardiac pacemaker. These experts have stated "...only a negligible current can reach the heart." And "Cardiac tissue...would not and could not be stimulated even if it were in direct contact with the Gun due to the unique characteristics of heart tissue...." With this medically safe tool available to law enforcement, volatile situations can be handled quickly and easily. Violent activity of even the biggest, strongest suspect can be terminated with virtually no injury. And when the probability of injury is reduced, the probability of liability is reduced.



Often called the NOVA STUN GUN, the XR-5000 is actually an Electronic Defense Module with a scientifically calibrated electronic pulse that inhibits the natural voluntary neuro-muscular response. The effect is similar to that of medical equipment used when testing neuro-muscular response in connection with nerve damage. Voluntary muscle control is safely and temporarily removed from the subject. This results in mental confusion, disorientation and loss of balance. The subject will usually feel weak, dazed and passive immediately after the XR-5000 has been applied.

The introduction of the NOVA XR-5000 has answered the demand for a hi-tech, non-lethal, low-profile, law enforcement tool.

Certified law enforcement training is now available through Texas A&M University Law Enforcement Training Division and is being developed by several state training academies nationwide. A serialized "Police Special" with a full one year warranty and tighter quality controls is now available factory direct. For the representative in your area contact the Law Enforcement Division of NOVA. For further medical, training or information on department policies and procedures send a request on your departmental letterhead to our company at the address shown below.

AMERICAN CORRECTIONAL ASSOCIATION

Code of Ethics

PREAMBLE

The American Correctional Association expects of its members unfailing honesty, respect for the dignity and individuality of human beings, and a commitment to professional and compassionate service. To this end we subscribe to the following principles.

RELATIONSHIPS WITH CLIENTS/COLLEAGUES/OTHER PROFESSIONS/THE PUBLIC

Members will respect and protect the civil and legal rights of all clients.

Members will serve each case with appropriate concern for the client's welfare and with no purpose of personal gain.

Relationships with colleagues will be of such character to promote mutual respect within the profession and improvement of its quality of service.

Statements critical of colleagues or their agencies will be made only as these are verifiable and constructive in purpose.

Members will respect the importance of all elements of the criminal justice system and cultivate a professional cooperation with each segment.

Subject to the client's rights of privacy, members will respect the public's right to know, and will share information with the public with openness and candor.

Members will respect and protect the right of the public to be safeguarded from criminal activity.

PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT/PRACTICES

No member will use his or her official position to secure special privileges or advantages.

No member, while acting in an official capacity, will allow personal interest to impair objectivity in the performance of duty.

No member will use his or her official position to promote any partisan political purposes.

No member will accept any gift or favor of such nature to imply an obligation that is inconsistent with the free and objective exercise of professional responsibilities.

In any public statement members will clearly distinguish between those that are personal views and those that are statements and positions on behalf of an agency.

Members will be diligent in their responsibility to record and make available for review any and all case information which could contribute to sound decisions affecting a client or the public safety.

Each member will report without reservation any corrupt or unethical behavior which could affect either a client or the integrity of the organization.

Members will not discriminate against any client, employee or prospective employee on the basis of race, sex, creed or national origin.

Members will maintain the integrity of private information; they will neither seek personal data beyond that needed to perform their responsibilities, nor reveal case information to anyone not having proper professional use for such.

Any member who is responsible for agency personnel actions will make all appointments, promotions or dismissals only on the basis of merit and not in furtherance of partisan political interests.

Don't send him to jail. Send him home.

The CSD Home ESCORT™ system. It's an effective way to monitor probationers, parolees and work releasees 24 hours a day.

It lets you sentence non-violent offenders—without putting them behind bars or sacrificing public safety.

From Control Data Corrections Systems, the CSD Home ESCORT is an easy-to-use electronic monitoring system consisting of three components.

A tamperproof radio transmitter is fastened to an individual's ankle. With a range that extends up to 150 feet, this transmitter emits a digital code which is read by its receiver.

A receiver is placed in the individual's home or any specified site and relays data received from the ankle transmitter to a central computer.

The central computer can be installed in your facility and monitor many individuals simultaneously.

The system is cost-effective. Installing it is far less expensive than building additional cells or prisons to house non-violent offenders. And while it won't solve all the problems of prison overcrowding, it's a step in the right direction. In a sense, offenders can even help defray the cost of sentencing.

This is just one of many ways Control Data technologies solve problems worldwide. For a detailed brochure on this system or answers to your questions call toll-free 1-800-828-8001, ext. 2370. Or write Control Data Corrections Systems, HQN11T, 8100 34th Avenue South, P.O. Box 0, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The first step in updating this directory was to contact several probation and parole professionals for opinions on needed improvements to the 1981 edition. Their comments and suggestions were incorporated into a comprehensive final questionnaire, the mailing list was carefully updated and we were on our way. We are indebted to those professionals for their expertise and willingness to participate in this project.

We wish to express our gratitude to the hundreds of large and small probation and parole department administrators who supplied information for this resource document.

The Association staff is to be commended for the design and production of this volume. They are as follows:

Research and Statistics (STAR)	Diana N. Travisono, Editor Jonna M. Reilly, Associate Editor

PREFACE

This second edition of the Probation and Parole Directory is a significant accomplishment for the American Correctional Association. We applaud all of those who supplied the valuable and extensive information on the following pages. Practitioners, researchers, public officials, planners, legislators, county commissioners and citizens will find this publication indispensable for adult and juvenile probation and parole/aftercare data in both the United States and Canada. The directory allows one to examine systems, philosophies and logistics of the majority of municipal, county, state and federal probation and parole departments.

Probation and parole systems are vital components of the correctional continuum. Without such important programs, the delicate balance of corrections which has been established to help minimize public anxiety about crime control would be damaged appreciably.

Correctional professionals who provide probation and parole services face the constant challenge of multiple roles. They supervise and counsel. They promote jobs for clients and develop community interest to help clients. In addition, they form liaisons with the criminal and juvenile justice agencies. The probation and parole practitioners' respective multifaceted professions form the basis of sound community based programs that help insure public safety.

The success of the first edition, published in 1981, is an indication of the value of this directory to a variety of persons. As always with directories, the main thrust is to receive data from every contact—in this case, three separate mailings and numerous phone calls went out to 1,875 departments. Information on 1,500 sub-offices was updated with names and phone numbers of chief officers. In certain instances judges and other staff are listed for a total representation of 5,280 probation, parole and aftercare personnel. Statistics on programs, budget, personnel and client caseloads are well represented, but not quite complete. Perhaps we will be allowed that privilege in the next edition. For more detailed information regarding any system, do not hesitate to contact your colleague in the particular jurisdiction of interest. If you have any questions or comments about this new, second edition, please contact the ACA office through the Statistics and Research (STAR) Department.

The material is current as of February 1, 1985. Every effort has been made to be current at publication, but some subsequent changes in structure, policy or systems may not be reflected. Our intention is to revise the Probation and Parole Directory every three years.

Tropical Armor

by

SILENT PARTNER

. . . for the Man in the Trenches

If you want to know what a piece of equipment is really worth, ask the Man in the Trenches. He knows exactly, because he pays for it in real terms — in personal commitment and energy.

By his measure most body armor is worthless. The cost it exacts in weight and discomfort exceeds what he is willing to invest. So, eventually, he discards it.

But now there is Silent Partner Tropical Armor, and the Man in the Trenches finally has something he can cost-justify in his own terms. A single wide Level 1+ unit weighs just a pound and a half. And the mesh carrier is so much cooler and more comfortable than ordinary strap-on carriers that it must be experienced to be believed.

The protection Silent Partner Tropical Armor offers is also something he considers worth having. At every rating level Silent Partner Armor is stronger than federal standards require.

And, most importantly, Silent Partner Armor is modular — a design concept we invented. That means you can start with the lightest and least expensive Silent Partner unit and scale it up into anything the situation requires — even hard armor capable of stopping assault rifle fire — just by adding components.

The Man in the Trenches will no longer face the absurd problem of deciding whether he is sufficiently at risk to be miserable in inflexible old-fashioned armor. With Silent Partner he can simply decide what level of armor the situation calls for.

And all this innovation and excellence actually costs less than the armor the Man in the Trenches has rejected. You can afford to provide him the protection he needs in the form he will accept whether you are equipping the most budget-strapped three-man police department or outfitting an airborne division.

Order today, or send $2.00 for our fully illustrated catalog of the entire Silent Partner line. You owe it to yourself. Especially if the Man in the Trenches is you.

INTRODUCTION

Norman L. Helber

The American Correctional Association (ACA) is to be congratulated upon the publication of the Second Edition of the Probation and Parole Directory. It is a massive undertaking which requires tremendous commitment of staff and other resources.

The final product is a volume used on a daily basis in probation and parole agencies throughout the United States and Canada. It is hard to imagine an agency functioning without this directory.

The American Probation and Parole Association (APPA) is honored to be invited to include both an introduction to the directory as well as information on our own association. This typifies the close and cooperative relationship that ACA maintains with its affiliates. However, APPA feels a special closeness with ACA because our existence came from an ACA Ad Hoc Committee on Probation. APPA continues as an active affiliate of ACA today.

While ACA concerns itself with the problems of the entire field of corrections, APPA is able to specialize in the areas of probation and parole. The two associations work harmoniously together.

* * * *

Probation and parole agencies have responsibility for about 75% of all adult offenders under correctional supervision. This percentage remains about the same year after year, not varying by more than a point or two. Likewise the problems facing probation and parole do not seem to change a great deal—the demands have always been greater than the resources could accommodate.

In 1980-82, the American Probation and Parole Association conducted a national research project in which the field itself identified the most critical issues facing probation for the 1980s. These critical issues were summarized into the following six statements:

1. Workload Management In recent years the demands placed on probation agencies have grown significantly. Agency workloads have increased at unprecedented rates, requests for presentence investigations have risen and the demands for probation services, both pre-trial and post-sentence, have increased. Resources necessary to meet these demands have not been forthcoming; consequently, probation agencies have found it increasingly difficult to keep pace with traditional service delivery approaches.

2. Budget Cutbacks Economic constraints being experienced nationwide have adversely affected probation and have placed serious limits on the probation system's ability to deliver services. Reductions in budgetary allocations have resulted in loss of personnel, reduction and/or elimination of in-house support units and programs, reduction in community resources providing collateral services, and increased frustration and morale problems among probation personnel. Further aggravating the problem is the fact that these financial constraints have come at a time when probation caseloads are increasing dramatically and programmatic alternatives are needed to deal with the influx of cases.

3. Community Resources Adequate community resources are vital to the success of any probation program. Securing the necessary community resources for assisting probation clients has traditionally been a problem for probation agencies. Some of the problems are: (1) a reluctance by some community agencies to work with offenders; (2) an absence of or inadequate resources for dealing with special problems such as mentally, emotionally or physically handicapped offenders; (3) a lack of coordination among community resource agencies and between probation and community resource agencies resulting in duplication of services while other needed services remain unavailable; (4) a lack of adequate communication and understanding between probation and community resource agencies; (5) limited knowledge on the part of probation personnel with respect to the availability of community resources; and (6) a common practice of using the criminal justice system, and probation in particular, as a catch-all for many of society's maladjusted for whom other community agencies, better equipped to deal with their problems, will not accept responsibility.

In recent years, the problem of securing community resources has been exacerbated as a result of diminishing financial resources at all levels of government and in many areas of the private sector. Many community agencies now charge a fee for services that were previously provided free. Many services have been eliminated for lack of necessary finances to continue. Moreover, the reduction in available financial resources has placed probation and community resource agencies in a position of having to compete against each other for a share of the available money in order to meet their operating expenses.

4. Professionalization of Probation Probation is viewed as an emerging profession that has yet to achieve a status commensurate with the responsibilities charged to or the expertise required of probation personnel. The lack of public recognition, accompanied by inadequate salaries and benefits, are viewed as a primary cause of probation's inability to attract and retain highly qualified and motivated people.

5. Community Support Community support is an important element in the effective administration of probation. Despite the need, the field of probation has not been aggressive in enlisting and maintaining strong support for probation within the community. Recent significant changes in the economic and political climate emphasize this need. Public attitudes toward the criminal justice system generally, and probation specifically, are often characterized by skepticism, mistrust and dissatisfaction. In addition, support for the concept of community corrections is being eroded as the public clamors for more incarceration and longer, tougher criminal sentences. In the face of these changes the field of probation can no longer afford to be without strong support from the community. If probation is to avoid serious, and perhaps fatal, budget cutbacks, counter and reverse negative public sentiments toward probation, and continue to provide services and seek effective, innovative approaches for dealing with offenders in the community, the field must take an aggressive, proactive stance with respect to enlisting and maintaining the support of the community.

6. Probation Mission and Goals Consensus regarding the appropriate mission and goals for probation does not exist at local, state and national levels leaving probation personnel without guidance in the performance of their duties. This allows the functions of probation to be dictated from outside the agency often resulting in inconsistent and/or counterproductive efforts being undertaken. Probation professionals must assume a proactive role in the formulation of a mission and goals.

* * * *

The same research study identified some possible solutions to the problems which were identified in the above six critical issue statements. These possible solutions give direction to the American Probation and Parole Association in planning training, conferences and other activities.

Individuals interested in reading the complete report on Critical Issues in Probation may obtain a free copy by requesting same from the APPA membership office.

Associations can do much to assist individual members in gaining a sense of professionalism. Associations can also address the problems within a profession. However it remains the responsibility of each and every professional employee to make corrections work as well as possible. Corrections will not work if individuals cannot communicate. This directory will certainly make it easier for us to communicate with one another. Every time you use it to locate the address or phone number of another individual or agency, remember that your professional association just made your job easier.

DIRECTORY USER'S GUIDE

The 1985 PROBATION AND PAROLE DIRECTORY provides current information on federal, state and county adult and juvenile probation/parole/aftercare systems in the United States. Canada's listings include federal and provincial systems.

The information, as of February 1, 1985, includes:

- An overview of how services are provided
- Parole, pardon or release boards
- The state and/or county administration of field parole and probation services, along with county, district or regional offices
- State Court Administrators' addresses and phone numbers, where applicable
- Independent county or city/municipal probation or parole offices (when these are an exception to the system)

The information for the administration of field services identifies:

- Chief administrators/highest officials
- Interstate compact contacts
- Counties served by office
- Programs and services offered
- Departmental budgets
- Beginning salaries
- Personnel
- Client caseloads

The DIRECTORY also includes information on fees charged to probationers or parolees, training and educational requirements for officers, and whether or not officers have peace officer status and carry firearms. Also new this year is a chart showing an overview of parole boards and providers of probation and parole services.

Every effort has been made to ensure completeness and accuracy; however, the Association cannot assume responsibility for errors or omissions. When detailed information was not provided, the address, phone number, and chief administrator were updated and included.

Changes or new information to be recorded in future editions of the DIRECTORY should be forwarded to the Association. Comments or suggestions for improvement are welcome.

UNITED STATES PAROLE COMMISSION

The U.S. Parole Commission consists of nine Commissioners appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. They serve six-year terms and may be reappointed for an additional term. One Commissioner is designated by the President as chairman.

The Commission operates from five regional offices, each headed by a Commissioner. Three of the remaining Commissioners make up a National Appeals Board in Washington, D.C.

The Commission has sole authority to order release on parole for any Federal prisoner who is eligible, subject to conditions imposed by the Commission. Failure to abide by such conditions, or commission of a crime while on parole, may result in a parolee's return to custody to serve all or part of the time remaining on the original sentence.

The Commission has parole hearing examiners who travel in pairs to each Federal prison bi-monthly. Based on a study of the prisoner's file and a personal interview, the examiner panel makes a parole recommendation. Examiners also conduct revocation hearings for alleged violators. Guidelines for the examiners are based on calculation of the risk of the prisoner committing a crime again and the severity of his or her offense. The panel's recommendations are subject to review and modification by the Commission. Prisoners also have a right to appeal all decisions to the National Appeals Board.

Under the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 and the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, the Commission also is responsible for determining whether a person guilty of certain law violations may serve as an organized labor official, or a management official in the labor field, or an employee of an employee benefit plan.

FEDERAL PROBATION SYSTEM

Federal probation officers serve U.S. district courts in 94 judicial districts located throughout the United States. Probation officers conduct presentence investigations on persons convicted in the Federal courts and supervise those placed on probation. In addition, probation officers provide correctional services to persons placed under pretrial diversion supervision by U.S. attorneys and persons paroled from institutions by action of the U.S. Parole Commission or military authorities. Ten pretrial service agencies operate in the Federal court system on a demonstration basis. These agencies provide judicial officers bail investigation and supervision services.

CODE OF ETHICS
FEDERAL PROBATION OFFICER'S ASSOCIATION

As a Federal Probation Officer, I am dedicated to rendering professional service to the courts, the parole authorities, and the community at large in effecting the social adjustment of the offender.

I will conduct my personal life with decorum, will neither accept nor grant favors in connections with my office, and will put loyalty to moral principles above personal considerations.

I will uphold the law with dignity and with complete awareness of the prestige and stature of the judicial system of which I am a part.

I will be ever cognizant of my responsibility to the community which I serve.

I will strive to be objective in the performance of my duties; respect the inalienable rights of all persons; appreciate the inherent worth of the individual, and hold inviolate those confidences which can be reposed in me.

I will cooperate with my fellow workers and related agencies and will continually attempt to improve my professional standards through the seeking of knowledge and understanding.

I recognize my office as a symbol of public faith and I accept it as a public trust to be held as long as I am true to the ethics of the Federal Probation Service. I will constantly strive to achieve these objectives and ideals, dedicating myself to my chosen profession.

ALABAMA

The Board of Pardons and Paroles considers for parole all adults committed to state correctional institutions. The Board has three full time members who are appointed by the Governor with the approval of the Senate.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles Service Office is administratively established within the Board of Pardons and Paroles. The office administers twelve area offices, which in turn administer 46 branch offices serving the 67 counties in the state. This Board has responsibility for adult probation and parole services.

Each of the 67 counties has a court assigned juvenile court responsibility. Two of the 67—Jefferson and Montgomery Counties—have Family Courts. These courts are part of a Unified State Court System. The judge of the Juvenile or Family Courts has ultimate authority for all juvenile court functions.

The Department of Youth Services establishes standards for certification of probation officers and subsidizes county probation departments. In effect, juvenile probation is provided by the state financially (50%) and by the counties (actual manpower). Juvenile Probation/Parole Offices supervise all juveniles placed on probation or aftercare.

The Board of Parole is reponsible for adult parole release.

Adult probation and parole field services are administered by the Department of Corrections. Probation and parole activities in the Northern, Southcentral, and Southeast Regions of the state are administered by a Regional Administrator. There are 11 district offices, four of which also provide part time services to other cities in their respective regions.

Juvenile probation is granted by the Court System. Supervision of probationers is by the Division of Family and Youth Services, Department of Health and Social Services.

Release for juveniles after institutionalization is termed probation; supervision is provided by the DFYS.

The Board of Pardons and Parole is an independent state agency whose seven members are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for staggered five year terms. The Board is responsible for parole decisions for all adult felons committed to the Department of Corrections. They also review executive clemency applications and make recommendations to the Governor regarding these actions.

Adult and juvenile parole services are provided by the Department of Corrections. Adult parole services are the function of the Adult Community Services Division. Juvenile parole services are the function of the Juvenile Services Division.

Adult and juvenile probation services are the function of the 15 county probation departments that are part of the Superior Court or judicial branch of the government.

ARKANSAS

The Board of Pardons and Paroles reviews adult cases only. It is a five member independent board reporting only to the Governor.

Adult parole services are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections. This department maintains 13 correctional facilities and provides parole services to adults.

The Arkansas Adult Probation Commission was established through Act 151 of 1983. The Commission is separate from the Arkansas Department of Correction. Its nine members are responsible for providing statewide probationary services to the Circuit Courts. It provides funding, technical assistance, training, and sets standards and minimum qualifications for probation officers.

Juvenile services are under the jurisdiction of the county juvenile courts. Each of the 75 counties maintains autonomous probation, parole and intake offices. In several instances, additional services are provided to youth by contractual agreements with the Division of Youth Services, Department of Human Services through a network of community-based centers throughout the state. Parole services are offered by Reintegration Counselors within these community-based centers.

CALIFORNIA

The Board of Prison Terms sets prison terms for adults.

The Narcotic Addict Evaluation Authority is the releasing authority for individuals committed by Superior Court to the California Rehabilitation Center under the Civil Addict Program.

Adult parolees are supervised by the Department of Corrections' Parole and Community Services Division. This Division administers four regional offices serving the 58 counties of the state.

The Youthful Offender Parole Board is the paroling authority for juvenile and young adult offenders committed to the Youth Authority. Parole services are provided by the Youth Authority's Parole Services Branch through four regional offices and 48 parole offices.

Probation services are provided by the counties for both adults and juveniles. The cities are served by the counties in which they are located.

COLORADO

The State Board of Parole, under the Department of Corrections, is the paroling authority for adults.

Parole Supervision is administered by the Department of Corrections' Division of Community Services.

The State Court Administrator administers the 22 district probation departments which provide adult and juvenile probation services. These districts are composed of from one to seven counties. Aurora, Lakewood and Colorado Springs have separate municipal probation departments.

Interstate adult probationers are supervised by parole officers under the Department of Corrections. Juvenile Interstate Compact cases are supervised by probation departments.

The Juvenile Parole Board has the authority to grant, defer, suspend, or revoke all paroles of a child committed to the Department of Institutions as a delinquent.

Parole supervision for juveniles is administered by the Department of Institutions, Division of Youth Services, Community Programs Office.

The Board of Parole is an autonomous agency primarily responsible for making policy decisions on release dates, terms, and conditions of parole; it reviews all cases for parole. The chairman assigns three members (including himself) to panels for each correctional insitution. These panels are the actual paroling authority. The panels make release, revocation and recission decisions on all individuals serving indeterminate sentences committed prior to July 1, 1981. Effective July 1, 1981, all prison terms are determinate, and these individuals will not be eligible for early parole.

Supervision of parolees is provided by the Division of Parole which is administratively under the Department of Correction. Since 1968, Connecticut has had a unified state system of corrections which includes responsibility for all jails, institutions, and parole services. The Division of Parole is administered by a Chief of Parole Services.

Adult probationers (over the age of 16) come under the supervision of the Department of Adult Probation.

Adjudicated delinquent children under the age of 16 are committed to the Department of Children and Youth Services for a period of up to two years (may be up to four years if child is designated a serious offender.) The aftercare department located at Long Lane School, the state training school, supervises children in the community following completion of their program at the training school. These children comprise about half of the case load; the other half are adjudicated delinquent children placed directly in a child caring facility as an alternative to the state training school.

On July 1, 1978, Connecticut became the first state in the nation to possess a single unified trial court, centrally administered and entirely state financed. Superior Court Judges are assigned to Juvenile Matters for a period of six months.

The Superior Court Family Division exercises exclusive jurisdiction over uncared for, neglected and dependent children under 18 and defective and delinquent children under 16, except for a limited category of Serious Juvenile Offenders subject to mandatory waiver to the criminal docket.

All juvenile matters including probation and detention are under the administration of the Director, Family Division, Connecticut Judicial Department.

DELAWARE

The Board of Parole, the paroling authority for adult offenders, is an independent agency whose five members are appointed by and are responsible to the Governor. The Chairman is the only full-time member.

Probation and parole services for adults are administered by the Division of Community Services under the Department of Correction.

Juveniles are paroled by individual institutional review committees; the Review Boards are responsible to the Chief of the Division of Youth Rehabilitation. The Division provides aftercare (parole) services.

The Division of Youth Rehabilitation, Department of Services for Children, Youth, and Their Families administers probation services to juveniles which commence with a judicial order from the Family Court resulting from an adjudication of a law violation. A range of services consisting of evaluations, effecting restitution and community service, individual counseling and referrals to other community agencies for counseling and other treatment services are provided.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The Board of Parole has responsibility for administering parole laws for all adult felons and misdemeanants sentenced to a term of six months or more and for youths sentenced under the youth act. The board sets the conditions for parole and determines when parole is being revoked or favorably terminated.

The Parole Division/Community Services of the Department of Corrections provides adult parole supervision.

The Social Services Division of the Superior Court, which serves as the probation system for the District of Columbia, is responsible for providing information and recommendations to assist the court in making individualized decisions in all dispositional phases of the adjudication process. The division provides court-supervised alternatives to incarceration for adults and juveniles, and offers supportive social services to those persons whose problems bring them within the purview of the court. The division, comprised of the Adult, Family, and Special Services Branches, offers specialized programs in the areas of adult and family services.

The Aftercare Services Division of the Youth Services Administration is responsible for juvenile parole/aftercare supervision after release to the community from an institution. Community supervision may be provided by Aftercare Service Branch Afterwork and/or in Youth Group Homes.

FLORIDA

The Parole and Probation Commission, an autonomous agency, is responsible for making decisions concerning the release of adults on parole.

The Department of Corrections supervises adult felon probationers and parolees in Florida. Probation and Parole Field Services is administered through five regional offices, 20 circuit offices, which parallel the Judicial Circuit boundaries, and 101 branch offices. Investigative and supervisory services are provided for both the Circuit Courts and the Parole Commission. Community Control, a new program resulting from the Correctional Reform Act of 1983, provides for house arrest as an alternative to prison.

A statewide Pretrial Intervention Program is also administered by the Department of Corrections as well as the operation of Probation and Restitution Centers. Contract provisions are made through the Department for the supervision of misdemeanants by local entities.

Juveniles are placed on probation or aftercare by the Community Control and Furlough Program within the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. In addition, all juveniles placed on Community Control by Circuit Courts are supervised. The Central Program Office is located in Tallahassee, with 11 district program offices serving 67 counties in the state.

GEORGIA

The Board of Pardons and Paroles grants parole to adults committed to state correctional institutions. The Board also grants reprieves, commutations, pardons, remissions, commutes death penalties, restores civil and political rights and supervises parolees and other conditional releasees.

Adult probation is within the executive branch of government and functions as a unified system under the Georgia Department of Offender Rehabilitation. The Probation Division, directed by the Deputy Commissioner, consists of 90 probation offices and 14 diversion centers located throughout the state. The division is managed by 10 district directors, 47 circuit chief probation officers and 14 diversion center superintendents. Cobb County has independent probation services.

Juvenile intake and probation services are provided through three different organizational forms in Georgia. The Department of Human Resources, Division of Youth Services, provides intake and probation services in 118 counties, as well as statewide parole services. In 13 counties, intake and probation services are provided by staff of county-operated and financed juvenile courts. In 28 counties, intake and probation responsibilities are shared by both Division of Youth Services staff and county staff.

HAWAII

The Paroling Authority of the Department of Social Services and Housing fixes the minimum term of imprisonment, grants or denies parole for adult offenders who are convicted of a felony, revokes parole, investigates and makes recommendations to the Governor on applications for pardon.

The Paroling Authority's Field Services supervises adult parolees.

The Adult Probation Offices under the circuit courts supervise adults who are convicted of felony offenses and a few convicted misdemeanor offenses.

The Administrator of the Hawaii Youth Correctional Facility acting by authority of the Director of the Department of Social Services and Housing grants parole to juveniles. Supervision is by the Community Services Section of the Hawaii Youth Correctional Facility.

Juvenile probation services are administered by the various Family Courts of the State Judiciary Department.

IDAHO

The Commission for Pardons and Parole is an independant agency comprised of five members which reviews parole cases of adult males and females. The members are appointed by the Board of Correction.

The Department of Corrections is responsible for adult probation and parole services through the Division of Probation and Parole. The Division provides adult services mandated by courts, statute and the Department of Corrections by furnishing offenders the opportunity within the Criminal Justice System to alter their behavior to that which is acceptable to society and allowed by statute.

The Department of Health and Welfare provides foster, group home and institutional placement and aftercare services throughout the state. Juveniles are released to aftercare supervision by the joint staffings of the Youth Services Center and Community Staff. Regional Youth Services Programs (aftercare) are administered by 7 regional managers who report to the Director of the Department of Health and Welfare. In addition, the Department provides contractual probation services in nine counties. The remainder of juvenile probation services are provided by county probation staffs which report to the county commissioners.

ILLINOIS

The Prisoner Review Board is the paroling/releasing authority for adults and juveniles admitted to the Department of Corrections. The Board sets the terms of release and sanctions for violation of those terms.

The Department of Corrections is responsible for the supervision of all committed persons placed on parole or mandatory supervised release, and supervises them in accord with the conditions set by the independent Prisoner Review Board. Adult Community Supervision is responsible for adults who have completed their sentences. The Deputy Director of the Community Services Division reports to the Director of the Department.

The Juvenile Division provides field services to juveniles through parole supervision, alternative placements and coordination of community services. Correctional Parole Agents for the Juvenile Division are assigned to each youth soon after admission. In the community, the Parole Agent acts as a service and counseling advocate for youth. Their duties include interaction with local agencies and programs to enlist resources to assist youth in continuing their education and/or vocational training upon release as well as obtaining group or foster home placements for youth unable to return to their natural home and providing crisis intervention to youth experiencing adjustment problems on their return to the community.

Adult and juvenile probation services and detention services are administered by the circuit courts and funded by the counties. Qualifying county departments receive varying amounts and rates of salary subsidy to improve and expand court services by the Administrative Office of the Illinois Courts, Probation Division. One hundred percent grant-in-aid reimbursement is provided to select counties to administer new programs to divert adult and juvenile offenders from commitment to state correctional facilities. All salary reimbursement and grant-in-aid is contingent on compliance with state regulations set down by the Supreme Court, including workload and operational standards, annual participation in professional training, annual service planning, statistical reporting, and monitoring evaluation of all court services. Supervision of the adult and juvenile Interstate Compacts are vested in the Probation Division.

INDIANA

The Indiana Parole Board consists of five full-time paid members appointed by the Governor. The Board considers parole for indeterminate sentence prisoners at the expiration of their minimum term and also acts as the Governor's Clemency Commission. Prisoners serving life sentences are eligible for parole consideration after serving 20 years if the offense was either first or second degree murder and after 15 years for any other offense which resulted in a life sentence.

The Juvenile Parole Committee grants parole to juveniles committed to state institutions.

The Parole Services Section of the Department of Correction supervises both adult and juvenile parolees through administration of seven district offices serving 92 counties.

Probation services for both adults and juveniles are administered at the county level and by city courts under the supervision of the Judicial Conference of Indiana, an organization consisting of all of the state's full-time judges. The Judicial Conference is governed by a Board of Directors which is headed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and is served by the Indiana Judicial Center which is the Conference's staff agency. The Department of Correction has no supervisory or administrative authority for probation effective January 1, 1981. Interstate Compact is administered by local probation offices.

IOWA

The Board of Parole grants parole to adults committed to state correctional institutions.

The Division of Community Correctional Services is administratively established within the Department of Corrections. Eight Judicial Districts supervise all adults placed on pre-trial supervision, probation, parole, and work release. They also conduct pre-trial interviews and operate residential facilities for the pre-institutional placement of adult offenders, as well as the placement of work releasees.

Interstate compact caseloads are maintained directly by state staff.

Juveniles are committed to the guardianship of the Commissioner of the Iowa Department of Human Services when placed in a state juvenile correctional facility. Juveniles are released (paroled) upon the order of the committing court, and are supervised upon release by the Department of Human Services, Bureau of Adult, Children and Family Services. The county juvenile court retains jurisdiction of these youth, and the court must order any change in placement.

As of July 1, 1985, juvenile probation services in each of Iowa's eight judicial districts are provided by juvenile court officers and other personnel appointed and administered by each district's Chief Juvenile Court Officer in accordance with the rules and procedures of the State Judicial Department. The Chief Juvenile Court Officer answers directly to the Chief Judge of the judicial district. Juvenile court officers have peace officer status and handle all types of children's cases coming under the juvenile court's jurisdiction, including delinquency, children-in-need-of-assistance, families-in-need-of-assistance, and termination of parental rights; although in some districts, the juvenile court officer only directly handles matters of delinquency, and monitors for the court the Department of Human Services' handling of the other types of cases.

KANSAS

The Kansas Adult Authority grants parole to adults committed to state correctional facilities. The central office is in Topeka; parole hearings are conducted at the various state institutions.

The Department of Corrections supervises parolees and interstate compact probation and parole cases. Hayesville has a separate parole office.

Juvenile parole is a function of the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services in cooperation with the Courts. The superintendent of the institution to which a youth is admitted determines the release date for that individual. Juvenile aftercare is administered in all 105 counties through the 17 area offices of the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.

Adult and juvenile probation and presentence evaluations are provided by the Court Services Division of the District Courts, except where independent municipal court offices have been established.

KENTUCKY

The Parole Board, within the Corrections Cabinet, grants parole to adults.

Adult probation and parole services are administered by the Department of Community Services and Facilities within the Corrections Cabinet. Adult probation and parole operates as a state system with adult felonies and misdemeanors supervised by the Division of Probation and Parole.

Juvenile probation and aftercare are handled by the Division for Field Services under the Department of Social Services, Cabinet for Human Resources. Fourteen District Program Managers assisted by sixteen juvenile court liaison specialists and direct services staff serve specific geographic areas in administering comprehensive services to children and their families.

Lexington and Louisville are served by independent juvenile probation/parole offices.

LOUISIANA

The Division of Probation and Parole, under the Department of Public Safety and Corrections, supervises adults placed on parole and probation, except where city court probation offices have been established. The Division administers four regional offices, which in turn administer 18 district offices that serve the 64 parishes in the state. DeRidder and Oakdale have independent city court probation.

Juveniles are paroled by the committing judge, who sets the parole date for juveniles placed in state training schools. The Office of Juvenile Services, within the Department of Public Safety and Corrections, Division of Youth Services, supervises juveniles placed on aftercare and probation, except where family and juvenile court probation departments have been established. Eleven district offices serve the 64 parishes in the state.

MAINE

The Parole Board grants parole to adults committed to state correctional institutions under the old criminal code. Those adults sentenced under the new criminal code, effective March 1976, have straight sentences and are not eligible for parole.

Juveniles are not dealt with by the Parole Board; however, one of the Board members acts as a final aftercare revocation hearing officer at the Maine Youth Center.

The Division of Probation and Parole, within the Department of Corrections, administers five district offices that serve the 16 counties in the state. The five district offices supervise all adults and juveniles placed on probation and parole in the state.

MARYLAND

The Maryland State Parole Commission grants parole to adults. Its jurisdiction extends to local city and county jails. The Chairman of this Commission reports to the Deputy Secretary for Public Safety and Correctional Services.

The Division of Parole and Probation, an agency of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, supervises parolees and probationers and assists them in successfully re-integrating into the community. The Division administers a community service program as an alternative to supervised probation and incarceration, a viable citizen volunteer services program, and provides supervision and investigation services to the courts and parole authority. The state is administratively divided into four geographic regions, each headed by a Regional Administrator who reports to the Assistant Director for Field Operations.

Juveniles placed on aftercare and probation are supervised by the Juvenile Services Administration of the State's Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. The State's 24 political jurisdictions are geographically broken down into ten regions. The Supervisors for each region administer the services for their respective regions and are responsible to an Assistant Director for Field Services. Detention and commitment institutions for juvenile offenders are administered and staffed by the Juvenile Services Administration.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Massachusetts Parole Board is an independent agency within, but not subject to, the State Department of Correction. The Board also serves as the Advisory Board of Pardons for the Governor. The Parole Board has jurisdiction over all commitments to state prison, reformatory and county houses of corrections serving a sentence of 60 days or more from either Superior or District Court.

Parole supervision is provided by a field staff under the direction of the Chief Parole Supervisor of the Parole Board. Seven regional offices serve the 14 counties in the state.

Adult and juvenile probation are functions of the Superior, District, Juvenile, and Family and Probate Court Departments. The Office of the Commissioner of Probation has executive control and supervision over the 102 probation offices throughout the Commonwealth.

The Department of Youth Services is responsible for supervising juveniles placed on parole. Regional offices are administered by the Bureau of Aftercare. The Bureau is responsible for community placement in foster homes, group homes, and non-residential programs as well as field operations throughout the state.

The Parole Board, within the Department of Corrections, grants parole to adults committed to state correctional institutions.

Parole and probation services are administered by the Bureau of Field Services within the Department of Corrections according to three regions. Adult felony probation officers are provided by the state within the regions. Adult misdemeanant probation services are provided by District Courts throughout the state. Presently, the District Courts are supported by the jurisdiction in which they are located (either municipalities or counties). Several districts do not have probation departments; the magistrate in these districts or volunteers supervise probationers.

The Youth Parole and Review Board, under the Department of Social Services, conducts parole hearings for juveniles who are state wards. In conjunction with the Board, there are also five Administrative Law Judges who conduct hearings.

The administration of the juvenile probation and aftercare system is the responsibility of the state, the court administrator and the county levels of government. The Office of Children and Youth Services of the Department of Social Services is required to provide consultation and assistance to juvenile probation workers.

In all counties, Juvenile Courts are divisions of Probate Courts, a part of the State Court System, and have exclusive original jurisdiction over delinquent children and concurrent jurisdiction over neglected and dependent children under 17.

The Juvenile Courts may commit youth to the DSS for treatment services, which may include aftercare. These juveniles are subject to the Youth Parole and Review Board.

MINNESOTA

The State Commissioner of Corrections has responsibility for parole and supervised release. With the exception of the parole of inmates with life sentences, the Commissioner delegates this authority to the Office of Adult Release consisting of an Executive Officer of Adult Release and three corrections department staff who are assigned part time to assist the executive officer. An advisory panel composed of department employees advises the Commissioner regarding inmates with life sentences.

The Board of Pardons consists of the Governor, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Attorney General. The board has the authority to grant pardons and pardon extraordinaries, and to commute sentences. The State Commissioner of Corrections or his designee is secretary to the board.

The State Commissioner of Corrections is the paroling authority for juveniles and delegates this authority to the Executive Officer of Juvenile Release. Appeals of the executive officer's decisions are heard by a Juvenile Review Panel.

Probation, parole and supervised release are provided by the state and counties in different manners. Counties participating in the State Community Corrections Act (one-third of the counties; two-thirds of the state population) provide probation, parole and supervised release services to both adults and juveniles. In the remaining counties, adult and juvenile probation, parole and supervised release services are provided by the counties either with their own personnel or through contracts with the state.

MISSISSIPPI

The Mississippi Parole Board, under the direction of the Commissioner of Corrections for administrative purposes only, is the paroling authority for adult offenders.

The Community Services Division of the Department of Corrections supervises adult probationers and parolees and makes pre-sentence investigations through regional offices.

The Mississippi Department of Youth Services paroles youthful offenders from its facilities upon the approval of the Superintendent of each facility. Parole supervision is administered by the Department through a Community Services Division which is also responsible for juvenile probation supervision. These services are provided through Youth Services Counselors employed by the Department and assigned to youth courts throughout the state.

MISSOURI

The Board of Probation and Parole, under the Department of Corrections and Human Resources, administers all adult parole and revocation responsibilities.

The Board of Probation and Parole field staff provide statewide probation and parole services for adult felons and misdemeanants. They also provide investigative and supervisory services on a limited basis to several smaller counties, and, to a larger extent, St. Louis City and Jackson County (Kansas City) for recognizance releases.

Juvenile probation and parole services are provided by probation officers assigned to the 44 Circuit Courts serving the 115 counties with the exception of juveniles sentenced to the State Institutions who are handled by the Division of Youth Services upon release.

MONTANA

The paroling authority for adult offenders is the state Board of Pardons. The Board is attached administratively to the Corrections Division, but is autonomous in its authority.

The Community Corrections Bureau under the Corrections Division supervises adult probationers and parolees as well as youth aftercare programs.

Juvenile probation services are handled locally by judicial districts which are funded by the counties.

NEBRASKA

The Board of Parole is the paroling authority for adult felons. The Board of Pardons, to which the Board of Parole reports, grants pardons and commutations. The Board of Parole may advise the Board of Pardons (Governor, Attorney General, and Secretary of State) on the merits of any application for remission, respite, reprieve, pardon or commutation, but such advice is not binding.

The Adult Parole Administration of the Division of Community Centered Services, within the Department of Correctional Services, provides parole supervision for all adult felons released by the Board of Parole from Nebraska's adult correctional institutions. The Juvenile Parole Administration, within the Division of Juvenile Services, provides supervision and parole services to juveniles released from the juvenile institutions. Release dates for juveniles are granted at the discretion of the Superintendent of the particular institution.

Adult and juvenile probation services are provided by the State Probation Administration, except in Douglas, Lancaster and Sarpy Counties, where there are additional services provided locally by county and city agencies.

NEVADA

The Board of Parole Commissioners meets once monthly at each of five state prisons to review adult parole, to conduct parole revocation hearings and to hold hearings on prisoner loss of statutory good time for violation of rules of prison discipline.

The Board of Pardons (Governor, Attorney General, five Supreme Court Justices) meets twice yearly to consider commutations and pardons.

Adult parole and probation services are administered by the Department of Parole and Probation on a statewide basis. The Department prepares Presentence Reports on convicted felons and gross misdeameanants for 35 District Courts. It supervises individuals placed on probation by these courts as well as parolees released by the Board of Parole Commissions.

Juvenile parole is administered at the state level under the Department of Human Resources through the Youth Services Division as the Nevada Youth Parole Bureau. Male and female parolees are supervised through five offices throughout the state. Juvenile paroles and releases are determined by procedures established for such reviews by the Superintendents of the two State Youth Training Centers.

NEW JERSEY

The State Parole Board is comprised of a panel for adult, young adult and juvenile cases. Each panel consists of two associate members with the chairman sitting as the third member of each panel. The Board is the paroling authority for all offenders committed as adults, young adults or juveniles in the state, as well as county offenders serving sentences of 60 days or more.

The New Jersey State Bureau of Parole is comprised of a central office (administrative), nine district offices, a community residential facility and institutional parole offices in each of its eight major correctional facilities.

The Bureau of Parole provides supervision for parolees by making available the necessary assistance, guidance and controls required for community living. Further it provides a residential treatment service for selected parolees designed toward a reorientation of their attitudes and life styles and a subsequent restoration of them to the community.

The Bureau further carries out investigative and supportive services to the work/study release and furlough programs and conducts clemency investigations for the office of the Governor.

The institutional parole officers provide the necessary link between the institution and the field parole offices in preparole planning and resolution of community problems prior to parole.

The Bureau is involved with all parolees age 14 and older who are released from the state's correctional insitutions and parolees from other state jurisdictions accepted under the terms of the interstate compact for the supervision of parolees.

A single probation department exists in each county to provide probation services to all courts in the county that handle adult and/or juvenile matters at the trial level. The judges of the Superior Court in each county appoint probation officers, fix their salaries and generally oversee the day-to-day operation of each probation department. Operating costs are paid for out of county revenues.

The Administrative Office of the Courts, through an Assistant Director for Probation, coordinates and supervises all probation services, acts for the Judiciary in relation to interstate probation matters, assists in developing policies and programs, conducts training for probation officers, and functions as consultants and advisor to the Judiciary.

The Adult Parole Board, the paroling authority for adults, reports to the Governor. The Board has the authority to parole offenders committed to the Corrections Department; make recommendations to the Governor in cases of clemency or pardons; consider those cases recommended by the Field Services Division for parole discharge; and keep up with parolees through reports from the Field Services Division.

The Juvenile Parole Board, the paroling authority for juveniles, reports to the Governor. It is impowered to parole, deny or revoke parole, and discharge from parole all juvaniles committed to the Corrections Department.

All adult probation, parole and juvenile parole services are supervised by the Field Services Division of the Corrections Department.

The District Courts administer juvenile probation services.

NEW YORK

The Board of Parole is an administrative body within the Division of Parole. The Board makes parole release decisions and has the power to revoke parole. The fifteen full-time members are appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate for six-year terms.

The Division of Parole is responsible for community protection and offender risk control through the administration of Parole Services throughout the state for adults. When certain juveniles (Juvenile Offenders) have been convicted in an adult court for a violent crime, they are supervised by the Division of Parole. The Division provides services both in the community and within correctional facilities.

The New York State Division of Probation, in the Executive Department, is a regulatory and standard setting agency, for fifty-seven (57) local departments of probation in the State. It also directly administers probation services in Montgomery County.

The State Director of Probation, as part of his regulatory authority, is charged with the responsibility to provide general supervision over the administration of probation throughout the State, and of securing the effective application of the probation system and the enforcement of probation laws. The State Director is also responsible for adopting and promulgating general rules designed to regulate methods and procedure in the administration of probation. These general rules govern such areas as space standards, staff development, probation management, case record management, probation supervision, interstate/intrastate transfer of supervision, investigations and reports, probation intake, violation and revocation of probation, support/collection, and state aid.

The major program responsibilities of the division, in addition to the development of regulations, include training, staff and organizational development, personnel standards, procedures for appointment of personnel, consultation and inspection. The Division also administers a program of state aid for local probation services.

Adult and juvenile probation services are provided by probation departments in each county, with the exceptions of Montgomery County, where services are provided by the Division of Probation, and the five counties of New York City, which are served by a consolidated city probation department. The local county and New York City Probation Departments provide presentence investigation reports to courts, supervise all adult and juvenile probationers, collect all restitution, provide juvenile intake and diversion services, as well as other services. The city of Lackawanna has its own misdemeanant probation department.

The Division for Youth, which cares for youths placed and sentenced by the family and criminal courts of New York State for offenses committed under the age of 16, provides aftercare supervision on a regional basis for those placed by the Family Courts. For those youth sentenced to the Division by the adult courts for certain violent offenses, parole supervision is provided by the Division of Parole.

Before you invest in body armor, ask yourself: why is this one the American Policemen's most popular?

If you're thinking of purchasing body armor, your first question is: which one?

The answer lies in another question.

Why is it American policemen would rather purchase Second Chance than any other body armor? And this in a country that produces over a dozen different choices of other body armor manufacturers?

NO OTHER ARMOR MANUFACTURER HAS THESE ADVANTAGES

Second Chance is FIRST in effective sales. Effective sales means the policemen who purchase Second Chance...wear it! What good is selling more armor than anyone else when it is seldom worn?

Second Chance is FIRST in innovation. Second Chance's original patents for soft body armor didn't stop imitators from copying our concept of concealable body armor. And, their actions haven't stopped us from staying ahead of our imitators with better ideas for protection for the cop on the street.

Second Chance is FIRST in 'saves'... more than the rest of the body armor industry combined! Even after more than 300 'saves' our imitators are telling American policemen that Second Chance isn't any good. Ask them for their 'save' list!

AND REMEMBER: SECOND CHANCE GIVES YOU MORE PURE KEVLAR

You can be absolutely sure each unit of Second Chance body armor contains 100% Kevlar. There's no unnecessary black magic formula to lure you into an uncomfortable vest; no spun plastic sponge that takes the place of Kevlar to cover your kidneys and spine; no plastic backed Kevlar to stiffen your vest or retain more body heat.

And there's the obvious reasons for wearing Second Chance – it's comfortable, concealable and made to be worn. All this with a ten-year warranty on every unit made with Second Chance quality proven standards. And don't forget our multi-million dollar product liability insurance.

CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION

Or, if you wish, we will refer you to a Second Chance dealer in your area.

The Parole Commission is the sole releasing authority for male and female adult inmates.

The Division of Adult Probation and Parole is responsible for the supervision of all adult probationers and parolees. The Director of the Division is ultimately responsible to the Secretary of the Department of Correction.

The Juvenile Services Division of the Administrative Office of the Courts is responsible for juvenile intake, probation and aftercare. Juvenile probationers are supervised by Juvenile Court Counselors. A juvenile is released from an institution at the discretion of the staff of the institution except when committed for a definite term and in cooperation with a pre-release conference with a court counselor.

NORTH DAKOTA

The Parole Board is an autonomous agency with authority to parole adults. The three members are appointed by the Governor.

The State Pardon Board is an autonomous agency with authority to pardon adults. The three member board is set up by state statute.

The Parole and Probation Department provides supervision of adult parolees and probationers on all felony cases throughout the state.

Juvenile probation and parole services are provided by Juvenile Correction Services of the Children and Family Services Division of the North Dakota Department of Human Services. The State Youth Authority is most active and takes formal legal custodianship of juveniles committed by the juvenile court. Nearly all children leaving institutional care receive aftercare (parole) services through the community correction programs.

Juvenile probation services are provided through the Juvenile Court, a division of the District Court. The state is divided into seven judicial districts, with the Presiding Judge of each district responsible for the administration of the court in that district.

OHIO

The Division of Parole and Community Services, Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections, is responsible for community based correctional programs, facilities, and services. It is comprised of three bureaus: the Adult Parole Authority, Community Services, and Adult Detention Facilities. Each Bureau is headed by an administrator who reports to the Chief of the Division.

The Parole Board of the Adult Parole Authority is the paroling authority for adult felons. The Adult Parole Authority may exercise general supervision over all probation officers in the state, including those appointed in county probation departments and those appointed by police and municipal judges. All parolees and selected probationers referred by the common pleas courts on a contract basis are supervised by the officers of the Adult Parole Authority. Currently, 48 of the 88 counties in the State contract with the Adult Parole Authority for probation services. In the remaining counties, probation services are provided by county probation departments.

Adjudicated juvenile delinquents who have committed an offense which as an adult would be considered a felony under the Ohio Revised Code, may be placed in the custody of the Department of Youth Services for treatment in institutions. Minimum sentences of six or twelve months are determined by offense classification. An early release program does exist. Upon release from the institution, the child enters aftercare status of one of eight regional offices operated by the DYS. They remain in the custody of the DYS until discharge or their 21st birthday. Parole revocation hearings are conducted in the committing court.

Probation of juveniles is provided by probation officers who are appointed by a Juvenile Court Judge.

OKLAHOMA

The Pardon and Parole Board is the paroling authority for adult offenders. The Board, a separate State agency, recommends paroles commutations and pardons, to the Governor who has the final decision.

The Division of Probation and Parole, under the Department of Corrections, provides statewide probation and parole supervision for adults. Tulsa and Oklahoma City have separate municipal probation court services which provide processing, screening, counseling with staff and referral to appropriate agencies or treatment facilities of citizens referred by municipal judges.

The Parole, Review and Hearing Board is the paroling authority for juvenile offenders. The Board, an administrative hearing body, makes recommendations to the Director of the Department of Human Services, who has the final decision. Court Related and Community Services, part of the Division of Children and Youth Services, Department of Human Services, provides juvenile parole services in all counties.

Juvenile court intake and probation are provided by Court Related and Community Services in all but three counties of the state. Comanche, Oklahoma and Tulsa Counties have statutorially authorized Juvenile Bureaus that provide court intake and probation services.

OREGON

The Board of Parole is the paroling authority for adult offenders.

The Parole and Probation Field Services Section is a part of the Corrections Division which is one of eight divisions comprising the Department of Human Resources. The Field Services Section provides parole services, presentence investigation and probation services to adult offenders assigned to the agency.

Community Corrections Act legislation provides funds to local units of government to plan, develop and deliver correctional sanctions and services at the local level. The overall purpose is to provide local sentencing options in lieu of imprisonment in state institutions. There are 12 Community Corrections Act (CCA) departments serving 14 counties (Coos County will join CCA in July of 1985) providing probation, parole and other services.

The release date for juveniles is determined by a team of institution and juvenile parole staff. Juvenile parole, part of the Office of Correctional Services of the Children's Services Division, supervises children placed in foster care, community residential facilities or the state training schools. Juvenile Parole Officers have been integrated into the branch offices of the Children's Services Division.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Board of Probation and Parole is responsible for parole action and supervision of all adult offenders receiving a sentence of more than two years. Offenders sentenced to a maximum of two years or less are paroled by county courts and supervised by county probation departments.

The Board also has authority to supervise probation cases and offenders sentenced to confinement with a maximum of two years or less when paroled and referred to the Board by the county courts. The State Board has only supervision authority in these special probation and parole cases; county courts retain authority to revoke, terminate or other judicial actions. All adult services are provided by the Board in Mercer and Venango Counties. The Board provides advisory services and staff training to county adult probation departments, and provides financial grants to counties for the improvement of adult probation services.

Juvenile probation is a function of the counties and their probation officers. There are no institutional juvenile parole boards; the Juvenile Court has complete and original jurisdiction over juvenile offenders. The Juvenile Court Judges Commission provides advisory services to the courts and county probation departments regarding administration and program content for juveniles.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The Parole and Community Corrections Board is charged with the responsibility for all adult parole and pardon actions. The Board oversees the Department of Parole and Community Corrections, a state agency, which is responsible for supervision of all adult parolees released by the Board and, as an agent of the Court, supervises all adult probationers in South Carolina.

The Department of Youth Services administers all juvenile justice services in the state including: prevention programs; detention screening; Family Court Intake; Probation; Restitution; diagnosis and evaluation; institutional care; community support programs (group homes, foster care, specialized treatment units); the Interstate Compact; and aftercare supervision.

Probation and parole services are administered through the Community Programs Division, headed by an Assistant Commissioner, and six Regional Directors who oversee court services in the State's 46 counties. Probation and parole caseloads are not distinguished and in some small counties, one field service counselor may perform intake functions as well as probation/aftercare supervision.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles, under the administration of the Board of Charities and Corrections, reviews adult parole cases. It is independent in its paroling authority.

Adult parole, juvenile aftercare, and interstate compact functions are administered by the office of Correctional Services, which is supervised by the Board of Charities and Corrections.

Adult and juvenile probation services are administered on the state level by the Court Services Department of the Unified Judicial System. Court services officers (probation officers), employed by the eight circuit courts, provide all services.

Juveniles are released, supervised, and discharged from the State Training School and Youth Forestry Camp upon recommendations of the Superintendent and Parole Services and approval by the Board of Charities and Corrections.

TENNESSEE

The Board of Paroles makes parole decisions and provides parole services for adults through Parole Field Services.

The Division of Adult Probation and Juvenile Probation, within the Department of Correction, provides adult probation and juvenile probation and aftercare services to all the counties. Chattanooga, Knoxville and Nashville have separate juvenile probation services; Memphis has its own adult and juvenile probation departments.

The release date for a juvenile is determined by the various Juvenile Court Judges based on recommendations made by the directors of the juvenile institution and the Assistant Commissioner of Youth Services. There is no juvenile parole board.

TEXAS

The Board of Pardons and Paroles has the statutory responsibility for the performance of two broad functions: administering the statewide parole and mandatory supervision system and investigating and recommending acts of executive clemency to the governor. Parole functions include determining which prisoners are to be paroled from institutions of the Texas Department of Corrections, establishing the conditions of parole, investigating and supervising all prisoners released on parole and mandatory supervision, conducting parole and mandatory supervision revocation hearings and revoking parole when appropriate. The Board also establishes necessary parole and mandatory supervision policy within statutory limits and represents the state in dealing with other states under the Interstate Probation and Parole Compact.

To accomplish these functions, the agency provides parole counselors at the prison units from four institutional services offices and supervisory officers for parolees and mandatory supervision releasees throughout the state from 40 district field services offices, eight of which are also regional offices.

Adult probation supervision is provided by the Adult Probation Commission, an independent agency which establishes standards and provides funds for district adult probation departments. The 116 district departments are under the administration of the District Courts. Officers are employees of the courts.

Supervision of juveniles on parole is by the Texas Youth Commission's Community Services Division. Six area offices administer 18 district offices.

Administrative authority for the provision of juvenile probation personnel and services in each of 254 counties rests in a juvenile board since enactment of legislation on August 29, 1983. While the juvenile boards administer services, the day-to-day delivery of services is managed by 152 juvenile probation departments providing services to the counties. There are 105 single-county and 47 multi-county juvenile probation departments.

The Texas Juvenile Probation Commission was created in 1981 to make probation services available for juveniles; improve the effectiveness of those services; provide alternatives to commitment by providing financial aid to juvenile boards; establish uniform standards and improve communications between state and local entities with the juvenile justice system.

UTAH

The Board of Pardons is a full-time board made up of three members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate. The Board is the sole authority for the granting of paroles and pardons.

The newly created Department of Corrections is composed of six components of which Field Operations is one. Field Operations encompasses both Adult Probation and Parole and Community Correctional Centers. By statute, Adult Probation and Parole is responsible for the supervision of all probationers referred by the state courts and all parolees released by the Board of Pardons from the Utah State Prison. Additionally, Adult Probation and Parole prepares presentence reports on all felony cases and selected misdemeanor cases referred by the courts and 90-day diagnostic evaluations on felony cases referred by the various courts.

There are sixteen satellite offices of Field Operations, of which Adult Probation and Parole is a part, and six community correctional centers placed throughout the 29 counties of the state.

In addition, the Department of Corrections contracts with private providers throughout the state for both residential and non-residential services fulfilling needs for which resources are not available within the state structure.

The Division of Youth Corrections, a part of the Department of Social Services, has responsibility for youthful offenders committed to the Division for supervision and treatment in community-based, non-secure programs or the state's various secure facilities and for parole services. This Division contracts with private providers for 235 program slots for non-secure residential and non-residential community-based services for delinquent youth. It is further responsible for funding 50% of county or regional detention centers costs and establishing and monitoring standards for detention. Local counties have the responsibility for administering detention centers and hold-over facilities.

The Division of Youth Corrections has its own paroling authority, the Youth Paroling Authority, which is separate and distinct from the Board of Pardons. The YPA has jurisdiction of all youth committed to the Division of Youth Corrections by the Juvenile Court to secure confinement and conducts Parole, Rescission and Revocation Hearings; establishes parole release dates and conditions; and determines dates of discharge.

Probation services for youth are provided as a part of the juvenile court system and is divided into five districts throughout the state.

VERMONT

The Board of Parole grants parole to adults and is responsible to the Governor.

Adult probation and parole services come under the jurisdiction of the Agency of Human Services, Department of Corrections. Five district offices and seven sub-offices of the Division of Probation and Parole supervise all adults placed on probation and parole.

With the closing of Vermont's only institution for delinquents in 1978, there is no longer any functional juvenile parole system. There are committed children in the custody of the Agency of Human Services, Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services (SRS), as well as children on probation. Children in custody are the groups of children who go into placements and eventually return to their communities where supervision is the responsibility of the caseworker.

Juvenile probation services, under the Division of Social Services of SRS are operated by twelve district offices responsible as well for the supervision of delinquents who are in the State's custody.

WASHINGTON

The Board of Prison Terms and Paroles' functions include fixing minimum terms, paroling, retaking and discharging from parole all adult offenders sentenced to prison. It is an independent board with members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the senate. Terms are 5 years staggered.

The Department of Corrections, Division of Community Services, is responsible for the management of adult probation and parole services throughout the 39 counties of Washington.

A Sentencing Reform Act which took effect on July 1, 1984 abolishes parole for crimes committed after June 30, 1984 and establishes a determinate sentencing structure for all felonies. Probation services in several forms remain available for first time non-violent and other selected offenders.

There is no juvenile parole board. The release date for juveniles is determined by the Division of Juvenile Rehabilitation. Juvenile parole services are provided in each county through six regional offices.

Juvenile probation services are provided by each county. Thirty-three probation offices have been established to serve the 39 counties.

WEST VIRGINIA

The Board of Probation and Parole, comprised of three full time members who are appointed by the Governor, is the paroling authority for adults.

The Department of Corrections is responsible for adult parole supervision. The Department also handles adult and juvenile interstate compact cases for probation and parole as well as a small percentage of probation supervision cases.

The West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals maintains probation departments that are responsible for providing probationary supervision services to adult and juveniles assigned through orders of the Circuit Courts. The 15th, 16th, 18th and 19th Judicial Circuits have no Circuit Court probation officers; services are provided by the Department of Corrections and the Department of Human Services.

Under West Virginia statute, juveniles return to the committing court for institutional release. Since release is judicially and not administratively determined, this is considered probation. These juveniles are supervised by the Department of Human Services. In approximately 25% of the cases, the Department of Human Services also provides the Courts with juvenile probation officers.

WISCONSIN

Wisconsin's integrated correctional system provides institutional and probation/parole/aftercare services to adults and juveniles. The Administrator of the Division of Corrections reports to the Secretary of the Department of Health and Social Services (DHSS), who is appointed by the Governor.

The Chairman of the Parole Board is the paroling authority for the State by delegation of the Secretary of DHSS. The Board is part of the Secretary's executive staff and administers all matters pertaining to the parole of adults in the state correctional facilities.

Supervision of adult and juvenile parolees and adult probationers is the responsibility of the Bureau of Community Corrections and the Bureau of Juvenile Services within six geographic regions.

Juvenile probationers are supervised by county social services departments. Some counties have elected to provide juvenile parole/aftercare services.

WYOMING

The paroling authority for adults and juvenile felons is vested in the Parole Board. The Board is also responsible for recommending commutations to the Governor. Work Release from the adult institutions is the responsibility of the Board of Charities and Reform.

The Department of Probation and Parole provides a statewide system of probation and parole services for both adults and juveniles. There are exceptions to this state system in that several counties and muncipalities have juvenile probation counselors and/or diversion counselors, notably among these is Cheyenne Youth Alternatives. At present there are six such agencies, usually staffed by one counselor.

GUAM

The Territorial Parole Board reviews adult parole cases.

Parole services are provided by the Parole Services Division of the Department of Corrections. The Chief Parole Officer reports directly to the Director of Corrections and to the Territorial Parole Board where specifically mandated by law.

Administration and supervision of probation services is the function of the Division of Probation Services. The Chief Probation Officer reports to the Administrative Director of the Court, and the Presiding Judge as well as other Judges of the Superior Court when requested.

The Directors of the Department of Youth Affairs and Department of Corrections report directly to the Governor of Guam, Territory of Guam.

There is no juvenile parole board or services.

CANADA

NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Canada's federal parole system operates under the authority of two agencies reporting to the Solicitor General of Canada: the National Parole Board and the Correctional Service Canada (CSC).

The National Parole Board (NPB) has exclusive jurisdiction and absolute discretion, under the Parole Act, to grant, deny or revoke day and full parole for inmates incarcerated for federal offences in both federal and provincial institutions, except inmates sentenced to provincial institutions (less than two years) in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. These provinces have established their own paroling authorities for these purposes under a 1977 amendment to the Parole Act enabling them to do so.

The Correctional Service Canada, on the other hand, is responsible for preparing and submitting to the NPB the cases of inmates eligible for conditional release, and for supervising and assisting inmates released by the NPB. It has exercised these responsibilities, in addition to those related to the care and custody of federal inmates, since its creation in 1977 out of the former Canadian Penitentiary Service and the former National Parole Service.

Both organizations are headquartered in the capital, Ottawa, but operate in a largely decentralized manner through a network of regional offices which they respectively maintain in the five major geographic areas of the country.

Most parole decisions are made by the regional divisions of the NPB. Similarly, case preparation and supervision services are delivered through the regional arms of the CSC.

However, policy development and formulation, in both organizations, is coordinated at the headquarters level to ensure consistency and to maintain the national character of the parole system.

ALBERTA

Parole supervision for inmates sentenced to terms of incarceration longer than two years less one day is provided by the Correctional Service Canada, except in outlying areas of the province, where it is provided on contract by the Correctional Services Division of the Solicitor General.

The replacement of the Juvenile Delinquents Act with the Young Offenders Act has significantly affected the delivery of correctional services. In 1984, responsibility for the operation and administration of a separate correctional program for young offenders between the ages of 12 to 17 years became part of the mandate of the Correctional Services Division.

The Division also administers a Temporary Absence Division which permits carefully selected, minimum security, sentenced inmates to be conditionally prereleased from provincial correctional centres with or without escort, for employment, education or humanitarian reasons, at any time during their incarceration.

MANITOBA

Probation in Manitoba provides a broad range of community programs and services for young persons and adults. These services and programs are mandated by federal and provincial legislation, principally the Criminal Code of Canada, the Young Offenders Act and the Manitoba Corrections Act.

Services are delivered from nineteen offices located throughout the province and the City of Winnipeg. The Probation Directorate maintains overall responsibility for program development and coordination, including resource allocation, service standards, program audit and staff training.

Community participation is encouraged and supported in a number of ways including community justice committees, community resources centres, volunteer probation officers and community participation agreements.

NEW BRUNSWICK

The provinces in Canada are responsible for detaining inmates sentenced to less than two years and supervision of offenders on community supervision including probation, parole, and temporary absence. A sentence of two years results in an inmate being accommodated in a federal facility. All young offenders (under 17 years of age) are the responsibility of the provinces. Therefore, persons under the age of 18 are entirely the responsibility of the Province of New Brunswick.

Persons sentenced to federal institutions may be released by federal parole service, which is a component of the Correctional Service Canada.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR

Pursuant to the passing of the Adult Corrections Act, 1975, of the province of Newfoundland, a division of the Department of Justice was created whereby the provincial custodial institutions and the probation service were amalgamated. The creation of this Division marked the commencement of the Adult Probation Services under the Community Corrections Branch of the Adult Corrections Division. The population served are adult offenders (age 17 +) whereas juvenile offenders are served by the Department of Social Services, of the Government of Newfoundland and parole is a responsibility of the Correctional Service Canada, a department of the Federal Solicitor General.

The Community Corrections Branch presently employs fifteen (15) probation officers at the capital city of St. John's and elsewhere throughout the province. Management staff consists of a Supervisor of Adult Probation at St. John's and a Chief Probation Officer overseeing the Branch operations on a provincial level.

The Department of Social Services is the principal agent in the province of Newfoundland and Labrador for the delivery of services to youth who are in conflict with the law. Youth between the ages of 12-18 years usually are referred by the youth court, but other referral sources are possible. The services available include family councelling, alternative measures (diversion), probation, supervision of community service orders and fine options, and custody placements. The latter includes a network of twelve (12) group homes located throughout the province for "open" custody with two training schools located in St. John's and Whitbourne for youth committed to "secure" custody.

ONTARIO

The Ontario Ministry of Correctional Services is divided into three main divisions: Operations; Planning and Policy, and Finance and Administrative Services. Also, the ministry has jurisdiction over the Ontario Board of Parole which considers for parole those inmates serving sentences of up to two years less a day in provincial institutions.

The ministry's Operations Division resulted from the amalgamation of the former Institutions and Community Programs divisions in 1984. The new division is comprised of the offender programming branch and five regions, each with its own regional director and regional managers. All superintendents of provincial correctional facilities and probation/parole area managers report to the regional managers for their region.

The probation/parole offices in each region provide services for all young offenders who are 16 or 17 years of age and for all adults aged 18 years or over who have been placed under probation supervision by the courts. Staff in these offices also provide supervision for all inmates released from provincial institutions under the authority of the Ontario Board of Parole. Probation and parole officers may also be responsible for the supervision of incarcerates released on temporary absence or serving intermittent sentences.

The ministry has been involved in a significant expansion of community programs in recent years, focusing on the development and utilization of alternatives to incarceration and the meeting of clients' needs. In addition, the participation of the community in this process has been actively encouraged and has resulted in increased privatization of services.

Juvenile services are the responsibility of the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

QUEBEC

Quebec Probation Service supervises defendants subject to conditions imposed by the court and prepares pre-sentence investigations for the court. In addition, it prepares pre-release reports and supervises paroles released by the Provincial Parole Board which was created in 1979.

Probation Service implemented a Community Service Programme in all the Quebec judicial districts and is responsible for its administration. The primary objective of the programme is to provide a court and to those who appear before it a substitute for prison sentences in cases where the public interest is not endangered.

Juvenile services are the responsibility of the Department of Social Affairs.

APPENDIX A

DIRECTIONS FOR COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS IN THE 1990s*

David D. Dillingham, Program Specialist
Community Corrections Division
National Institute of Corrections

At the 150th anniversary of the inception of probation in the United States, a central problem facing community corrections is to clarify the purposes which guide its actions. It is clear that a redefinition of its aims is badly needed. Generations of probation and parole workers have based their efforts on a vision of offender rehabilitation that today is seriously flawed. Community supervision built around concerns for offender well-being has lost credence with scholars and citizens alike with one researcher calling probation "kind of a standing joke."

But if community supervision based on rehabilitation has lost its attraction as an idea, it has not lost its attraction as a function. For decades, approximately one-half to two-thirds of the offenders under correctional authority at any given time have been supervised in the community. With institutional crowding a nation-wide phenomenon, viable community punishment alternatives are increasingly sought. Thus, just as the concept is losing credibility as a way of managing offenders, the need for inexpensive and flexible community supervision alternatives has never been more important.

To address the problems of supervision requires first an ordering of the priorities of corrections. Two major sets of values compete: fair punishment, emphasizing the importance of selecting punishments which reflect the seriousness of the current offense; and risk management, emphasing the need to organize programs which minimize the immediate and future risk to the community posed by the offender.

Typically, reformers seek to maximize one set of values over the other. Experience has shown that such attempts ordinarily fail, for it is not possible to ignore either set of values. The optimal approach is one which recognizes the value of fair punishment as a constraint on risk management concerns. Whatever punishments are imposed on offenders, they cannot be more severe than is deserved for the offense, nor can they be so lenient as to denigrate the seriousness of the offense.

The information necessary for making decisions along punishment dimensions is available at the time of sentencing. For this reason, and because of the traditional role they have played in our society, the courts should make the decisions about the appropriate punishment for a given crime. In turn, while working within these limits and constraints, the correctional function is to operate efficient and humane programs and institutions with controls established for each based on the relative risk posed by the type of offenders in them.

It is important to emphasize that a concern for risk has at least two overlapping but distinguishable aspects. The first relates to changing the fundamental causes of risk (i.e., altering either an offender's character or the world in which he must function). The second emphasizes managing the risk posed by the offender even if fundamental change is not possible or probable. Our present knowledge is limited about ways of significantly altering the lives and the worlds of offenders so that when they are released from control they will no longer commit crimes. Therefore, we are left with the task of management. We have to control crime in the short term while pursuing a search for longer term solutions.

Three values are predominant in any attempt to integrate risk management systems with fair punishment: (1) correctional methods that are used must reflect knowledge about effective approaches to offender risk control; (2) interventions cannot violate basic principles of humaneness; and (3) all things being equal, that which costs least should be done. These three values support an emphasis on managing offenders in the community, with minimal reliance on traditional incarceration.

To these ends, correctional programs need to be ranked according to the level of public protection each affords (and concomitantly the amount of intervention in the life of the offender each represents). For example, under such a plan, programs would range in levels from prison (maximum, medium, and minimum); through local correctional facilities, half-way houses, and home detention; to intensive surveillance in the community, probation and parole supervision, and community service/restitution.

These control levels provide a roughly equivalent loss of liberty and degree of public safety. While courts would impose the appropriate initial control level and durational limits, the correctional task would be to manage offenders within those levels and at predetermined times provide for the movement of offenders from one control level to another with offenders being expected to move through supervision levels of decreasing intensity unless their behavior suggests otherwise. In order to control discretion and provide for reliable risk classification, objective risk-screening systems must be used with any variations from expected decisions explained.

Thus, correctional programs must be concerned with: (1) Use of standard assessment instruments that make decision criteria visible, testable, and subject to continuing research; (2) Use of known groupings for risk classification, thereby making the type and amount of prediction error visable; (3) The placement of offenders in programs with control levels based on the risk they pose; and (4) The establishment of routine, consistent schedules for reducing the intrusiveness of risk-control methods.

Under such a system, levels of supervision might include: (1) Intensive; (2) Regular (subdivided into close and medium); and (3) Reduced (subdivided into minimum and administrative). Policies would spell out frequency and types of contacts between officer and offender for each level of supervision. These levels would be central to the limited risk-control process. While the major tools of community supervision—surveillance, field visits, referrals, and interviews—will still form the basis for the daily activities of most officers, some of these approaches will be suitable only for certain offenders. Therefore, activities will vary among clients but the widely varying "styles" of supervision now exhibited by officers operating with unchecked discretion will be curtailed.

In addition to monitoring cases, officers would work with offenders around problems relating to crime reduction purposes; however, offenders could not be forced to address problems not required by conditions of probation or parole supervision. Moreover, while it may be appropriate for some services to be provided directly, the bulk of services could be delivered more effectively if they were brokered to other agencies in the community.

As traditionally constituted and administered, most correctional field services organizations are not well-equipped to operate according to the guidelines described. The system envisioned would require substantial and in many ways fundamental changes in the organization, staffing, and daily operations of correctional field services. It is one thing to specify a philosophy for administration; it is quite another to institute practices which make that philosophy operational.

In order to implement these changes, a socio-technical systems approach must be taken to the change process. Such an approach will recognize that organizational structure must be revised in order to reinforce the new approaches of corrections. Moreover, the correctional activities of staff will need to be altered so that their efforts become more consistent with purposes of corrections.

Most important, systems must be devised to control the discretion of staff members. This will involve the use of information systems that make the actions of staff explicit, allowing for supervisory monitoring and development of effective feedback mechanisms.

*The National Institute of Corrections from time to time publishes documents that represent promising approaches to policy. They are made available to the field so they can be considered, tested in various settings, and the results disseminated to those in policy-making positions. A recent publication, Directions for Community Corrections in the 1990s, by Vincent O'Leary of the State University of New York at Albany and Todd R. Clear of Rutgers University represents one such contribution. Ideas from this paper are excerpted here.

WHAT WE CAN EXPECT FROM A SYSTEM OF PAROLE

Christopher Dietz, Chairman
New Jersey State Parole Board

Since the late 1960s, both the philosophy and the practice of parole have been challenged. Rising crime rates, sensationalistic media coverage, and the public's growing fear of victimization have resulted in periodic demands for abolition of parole. The states vary greatly in public policy, mission assignments, authority, resources, procedures, and cooperation within the criminal justice process. Even in those states that have "abolished" parole, the concept of earned release or mandatory parole supervision is maintained under another label. These variations undercut any notion that parole is a nationally coherent entity.

Nonetheless, properly structured parole is a vital component of the criminal justice system. In New Jersey, as elsewhere, parole is not merely an act of leniency casually bestowed on someone who has willfully chosen to violate the criminal law. Rather, it is an earned change in status—the result of a careful and deliberate decision by the parole board that certain offenders have earned the privilege to serve the remainder of their sentences under supervision in the community. Thus, the parole release process is structured for risk evaluation, not for appellate review of judicial punishment or for the imposition of punishment.

Parole, by whatever label, has three main parts: the decision when and if to release an offender from confinement; the supervision of the offender in the community with support services for reentry; and the possible revocation of parole status. Understanding how these parts operate within the criminal justice system is essential to appreciating what can be reasonably expected from parole release and supervision. Decisions directly affecting public safety and criminals are made long before eligibility for parole release. Prosecutors exercise discretion not only in choosing what crimes should be charged, but also in downgrading or dismissing offenses as a result of plea negotiation. The judge generally has exclusive jurisdiction over whether criminals will be incarcerated. Corrections officials determine where and in what custody status convicted felons will serve their sentences. By the time the parole system has the jurisdiction to consider the case, the critical punitive judgments have been made.

Suggesting that parole has a function other than risk evaluation, therefore, misleads the public. If a sentence to a term of imprisonment is a reaction to demonstrated danger to society, then so must be a system of screening and evaluation before release. In most states, a wide array of factors is considered during a parole hearing. These necessarily include but are not limited to the commission of serious disciplinary infractions; the nature and pattern of previous convictions; the adjustment to previous probation, parole, and incarceration; the facts and circumstances of the offense; the aggravating and mitigating factors surrounding the offense; participation in institutional programs that might have led to the improvement of problems diagnosed at admission or during incarceration; documented changes in attitude toward self or others; documentation of personal goals and strengths or motivation for law-abiding behavior; parole plans; inmate statements suggesting the likelihood that the inmate will commit another crime; and court statements about the reasons for the sentence.

In an increasing number of states, victims of the crime, as well as the sentencing judge, prosecutor, and media, are notified of the date of the hearing. New Jersey allows the victim to give information on the crime's impact at the beginning of the sentence, well before parole eligibility. The board also encourages the victim to keep the board up to date and to give additional information relevant to the parole decision. This practice is not an intrusion into parole; rather, it is a solicitation of essential documentation to support a parole decision. This important innovation allows parole boards to confront inmates with the issue of culpability for the effects of crime and provides a sensible way to make evaluations. Offenders who have not thought through responsibility for wrongdoing and who cannot demonstrate self-respect cannot be expected to consider the rights of others. Earning a release date and participating in a decision about successful reintegration are reinforced by signing an agreement that states a willingness to abide by the conditions required for successful parole supervision. Inmates must always understand that they are ultimately responsible for their own conduct.

Conditions of parole are not instruments of further punishment. Rather, they are structures to secure the parolee's return as a law-abiding, productive citizen. Because parole is the privilege of serving the remainder of a sentence in the community, stringent enforcement of regular reporting, reporting of changes in residence, respect and obedience for all laws, and the payment of all fines or restitution are not unreasonable. These general parole conditions can be supplemented by such special conditions as participation in a program for substance abuse, mental health counseling, or periodic urine monitoring. Community resources must be marshalled to ensure non-return to criminal activity. To this end, we must dramatically reorder our priorities. Anything less is foolhardy and wastes billions of dollars.

The revocation of parole because of violation of general or special conditions demonstrates the vigilance of our process and its commitment to public safety. Determinate sentencing, as an alternative to parole, forces the system to wait for the smoking gun rather than intervene proactively before another crime. Thus, parole is a final opportunity to shut down the revolving door of criminal behavior.

Parole is not a panacea, however, All too often, our scarce prison resources are used to warehouse outcast human beings—retarded or illiterate offenders without job skills, addicted and mentally ill offenders—the rejects of other human services providers. Prisons should not be forced in this way to be inhumane segregation units for the hopeless, nor can parole be expected to transform miraculously what years of neglect have brought about.

We have a very firm sentencing structure in most states. Resources and funding must now be allocated to correctional programming and parole reintegration services. Not only are individuals obligated to live within the constraints of community norms and the rule of law, but society itself also has an obligation to assist in the return of those offenders who have earned the privilege to resume their place in society. Parole within this context is not an act of "do-gooder" largesse. It represents a rational assessment that the individual, upon his or her return, will not jeopardize the community safety.

Parole is a crucial component of the criminal justice system. It must remain so if the process of sentencing is to contribute to offender reform and community protection.

NOTES

Over 79% of the county/court adult parole/probation offices require training in the first year of employment, with 40 or 24 hours being the most common requirements. The mandated number of hours ranged from 8 to 240. After the first year of employment, 57% of these offices require some amount of additional training. The most common amount is 40 hours, with a range from 5 to 240.

Over 65% of the county/court juvenile parole/probation offices require training in the first year of employment, with 120 or 80 hours being the most common requirements, followed closely by 40, 160, and 30. The mandated number of hours ranged from 8 to 240. After the first year of employment, 32% of these offices require some amount of additional training. The most common amount is 40 hours, with a range from 2 to 120.

ASSOCIATION OF PAROLING AUTHORITIES INTERNATIONAL (APAI)

Purpose and goals: The APAI is an international organization dedicated to excellence in the performance of the parole function. The association holds two meetings each year in conjunction with the ACA's annual and winter meetings. APAI has 12 standing committees that conduct the business of the association in the absence of a full-time paid staff.

The main focus of the APAI as stated in its Constitution is to extend, develop and promote parole work and programs throughout the United States, Canada and the territories, and other jurisdictions by increasing public interest and support through conferences and cooperative programs.

Other goals of the APAI are to:

- Facilitate communication between paroling authorities through a newsletter that is produced twice annually;
- Sponsor workshops and other training programs to improve the professionalism of the parole system.

AMERICAN PROBATION AND PAROLE ASSOCIATION (APPA)

Purpose and goals: The goals and functions of the APPA are to:

- Advance progressive probation and parole practices;
- Stimulate high standards of training and the professionalism of personnel;
- Promote international communication and exchange of ideas;
- Encourage public awareness and acceptance of probation and parole as an effective means to deal with the prevention, control and correction of crime and delinquency;
- Encourage the development of innovative services, research design and program evaluation;
- Convene the American Probation and Parole Annual Institute and other institutes/conferences which may benefit the Association;
- Prepare and distribute publications;
- Encourage scholarships and awards for high standards of professional practices in probation and parole;
- Establish assistance to probation and parole services through training, advocacy and technical assistance through the expertise and membership of the Association;
- Coordinate and cooperate with national and regional organizations with similar objectives and goals.

PAROLE AND PROBATION COMPACT ADMINISTRATORS' ASSOCIATION (PPCAA)

Purpose and goals: Membership is composed of residents of all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Officers are appointed by state governors who sign the Interstate Compact for the Supervision of Parolees and Probations.

The object of the PPCAA is to:

- Provide opportunities for officers' network;
- Exchange information;
- Effectively execute the provisions of the Uniform Act for Out-of-State Parolee Supervision, the Compacts entered into by and among the contracting states, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder;
- Secure uniformity in interpretation, practice and procedure.

ASSOCIATION OF JUVENILE COMPACT ADMINISTRATORS (AJCA)

Purpose and goals: The AJCA shall:

- Return runaways who have not been adjudicated delinquent to their home states;
- Return absconders and escapees to the states they left;
- Permit out-of-state supervision of a delinquent juvenile who should be sent to some other state after breaking the law, provided he or she is eligible for parole or probation.

NATIONAL JUVENILE DETENTION ASSOCIATION (NJDA)

Purpose and goals: The NJDA is formed exclusively for charitable, scientific and educational purposes, including the promotion of adequate detention services to children. Furthermore, the NJDA serves to:

- Interpret and promote the concepts of juvenile detention services at the national, state and local levels;
- Define the mission of and interpret the detention process;
- Review and establish detention standards and practices;
- Stimulate the development and operation of training programs for detention staffs;
- Encourage more creative writing in the field of juvenile detention;
- Facilitate the collection and dissemination of data with respect to juvenile detention;
- Stimulate research in the area of juvenile detention;
- Serve as a forum group for persons and organizations interested in juvenile detention;
- Provide liaison with other organizations and professional groups interested in the field of juvenile detention.

AMERICAN CORRECTIONAL ASSOCIATION
NATIONAL CORRECTIONAL POLICY

In conjunction with the National Institute of Corrections (NIC), the American Correctional Association (ACA) has implemented the National Public Correctional Policy development plan. This plan represents a consensus-building process for identifying, ratifying, disseminating, and assisting with implementation of national correctional policies. The goal is to provide a unified sense of purpose and direction to correctional systems, agencies, and services throughout the country. Both ACA and NIC have designated staff to this project and have appointed a National Policy Advisory Committee.

The policy development process is specifically designed to ensure wide representation and a solid base for action. Extensive input is sought and received for each policy statement. All recommendations are reviewed by the Advisory Committee and, based on this input, the policies are redrafted. Once there is consensus on a policy, it is submitted for ratification at the ACA's annual Congress or Winter Conference.

The ACA policy development program is developing national policies for all correctional arenas. The policy development process represents an intensive effort to use the experience and expertise of correctional practitioners to develop realistic direction for the field. The ratified national polices will provide a common foundation upon which the fundamental problems that daily impact the field of corrections can be addressed and resolved. So far, twenty-one policies have been ratified by ACA's Delegate Assembly.

Each and every policy is an important and distinct part of the group of national correctional policies. Here we present the policies of prime importance to the probation and parole field.

For further information contact Charlotte A. Nesbitt at the ACA offices.

The Purpose of Corrections

In order to establish the goal and objectives of any correctional system, there must be a universal statement of purpose that all members of the correctional community can use in goal setting and daily operations.

Policy Statement: The overall mission of criminal and juvenile justice, which consists of law enforcement, courts and corrections, is to enhance social order and public safety. As a component of the justice system, the specific purpose of corrections is:

A. To implement court-ordered supervision and, when necessary, detention of those accused of unlawful behavior prior to adjudication,

B. To assist in maintaining the integrity of law by administering sanctions and punishments imposed by courts for unlawful behavior,

C. To offer the widest range of correctional options, including community corrections, probation, institutions and parole services, necessary to meet the needs of both society and the individual, and

D. To provide humane program and service opportunities for accused and adjudicated offenders that will enhance their community integration and economic self-sufficiency, and that will be administered in a just and equitable manner within the least restrictive environment consistent with public safety.

Correctional Standards and Accreditation

Correctional agencies should provide community and institutional programs and services that offer a full range of effective, just, humane and safe dispositions and sanctions for accused and adjudicated offenders. To assure accountability and professional responsibility, these programs and services should meet accepted professional standards and obtain accreditation. The use of standards and the accreditation process provides a valuable mechanism for self-evaluation, stimulates improvement of correctional management and practice, and provides recognition of acceptable programs and facilities. The American Correctional Association and the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections have promulgated national standards and a voluntary system of national accreditation for correctional agencies. The beneficiaries of such a process will be the administration and staff of correctional agencies, offenders, and the public.

Policy Statement: All correctional facilities and programs should be operated in accordance with the standards established by the American Correctional Association and should achieve and maintain accreditation through the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections. To fulfill this objective, correctional agencies should:

A. Implement improvement as necessary to comply with appropriate standards specified or referenced in the following manuals and supplements:
   Standards for Adult Parole Authorities
   Standards for Adult Community Residential Services
   Standards for Adult Probation and Parole Field Services
   Standards for Adult Correctional Institutions
   Standards for Adult Local Detention Facilities
   Standards for Juvenile Community Residential Facilities
   Standards for Juvenile Probation and Aftercare Services
   Standards for Juvenile Detention Facilities
   Standards for Juvenile Training Schools
   Standards for the Administration of Correctional Agencies

B. Seek and maintain accreditation through the voluntary process developed by the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections in order that, through self-evaluation and peer review, necessary improvements are made, programs and services come into compliance with appropriate standards and professional recognition is obtained.

Crowding and Excessive Work Loads in Corrections

Overpopulation of correctional programs and facilities can negate the effectiveness of management, program, security, and physical plant operations and can endanger offenders, staff, and the public at large. High population density within correctional facilities has been associated with increased physical and mental problems, more frequent disciplinary incidents, higher rates of assault and suicide, and decreased effectiveness in programs and services. When the population of a correctional program or facility exceeds capacity, maintaining safe and reasonable conditions of confinement and supervision becomes increasingly difficult, and may become impossible. Excessive work loads in institutional and community corrections dilute effectiveness of supervision and support services and threaten public safety.

Policy Statement: The numbers of offenders assigned to correctional facilities and community services should be limited to levels consistent with recognized professional standards. Correctional agencies should:

A. Establish and maintain safe and humane population and work load limits for each institution and service program based on recognized professional standards;

B. Develop, advocate, and implement, in coordination with the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government, emergency and long-term processes by which offender populations can be managed within reasonable limits;

C. Anticipate the need for expanded program and facility capacity by using professional population projection methodologies that reflect both demographic and policy-related factors influencing correctional population growth;

D. Advocate the full development and appropriate use of pretrial/adjudication release, probation, parole, community residential facilities, and other community services that are alternatives to assigning offenders to crowded facilities or that reduce the duration of assignment of offenders to such facilities; and

E. Develop, advocate, and implement plans for necessary additional facilities, staff, programs, and services.

Parole

Parole is the conditional release of an offender from confinement before expiration of sentence pursuant to specified terms and conditions of supervision in the community. The grant of parole and its revocation are responsibilities of the paroling authority. Supervision of the parolee is provided by a designated agency that ensures compliance with all requirements by the releasee through a case management process. Since the vast majority of those incarcerated will eventually be released into the community, the public is best protected by a supervised transition of the offender from institutional to community integration. Parole offers economic advantages to the public, the offender, and the correctional system by maximizing opportunities for offenders to become productive, law-abiding citizens.

Policy Statement: The parole component of the correctional system should function under separate but interdependent decision-making and case supervision processes. Paroling authorities should seek a balance in weighing the public interest and the readiness of the offender to re-enter society under a structured program of supervisory management and control. Paroling systems should be equipped with adequate resources for administering the investigative, supervisory, and research functions. Administrative regulations governing the grant of parole, its revocation, case supervision practices, and discharge procedures should incorporate standards of due process and fundamental fairness. To achieve the maximum cost-benefits of parole supervision, full advantage should be taken of community-based resources available for serving offender employment and training needs, substance abuse treatment, and other related services. The parole system should:

A. Establish procedures to provide an objective decision-making process incorporating standards of due process and fundamental fairness in granting of parole that will address, at a minimum, the risk to public safety, impact on the victim, and information about the offense and the offender;
B. Provide access to a wide range of support services to meet offender needs consistent with realistic objectives for promoting law-abiding behavior;
C. Ensure any intervention in an offender's life will not exceed the minimum needed to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of parole;
D. Provide a case management system for allocating supervisory resources through a standardized classification process, reporting parolee progress, and monitoring individualized parolee supervision and treatment plans;
E. Provide for the timely and accurate transmittal of status reports to the paroling authority for use in decision making with respect to revocation, modification, or discharge of parole cases;
F. Establish programs for sharing information, ideas, and experience with other agencies and the public; and
G. Evaluate program efficiency, effectiveness, and overall accountability consistent with recognized correctional standards.

Probation

The vast majority of adjudicated adult and juvenile offenders remain in the community. Probation is a judicial decision that assigns the responsibility for supervision and control of these offenders to community corrections.

Policy Statement: Probation is a frequently used and cost-effective sanction of the court for enhancing social order and public safety. Probation may be used as a sanction by itself or, where necessary and appropriate, be combined with other sanctions such as fines, restitution, community service, residential care, or confinement. Agencies responsible for probation should:

A. Prepare disposition assessments to assist the court in arriving at appropriate sanctions. The least restrictive disposition consistent with public safety should be recommended;
B. Establish a case management system for allocating supervisory resources through a standardized classification process;
C. Provide supervision to probationers and, with their input, develop a realistic plan to ensure compliance with orders of the court;
D. Monitor and evaluate, on an ongoing basis, the probationer's adherence to the plan of supervision and, when necessary, modify the plan of supervision according to the changing needs of the offender and the best interests of society;
E. Provide access to a wide range of services to meet identifiable needs, all of which are directed toward promoting law-abiding behavior;
F. Assure any intervention in an offender's life will not exceed the minimal amount needed to assure compliance with the orders of the court;
G. Initiate appropriate court proceedings, when necessary, if the probationer fails to comply with orders of the court, supervision plan, or other requirements so the court may consider other alternatives for the protection and well-being of the community;
H. Oppose use of the probation sanction for status offenders, neglected or dependent children, or any other individuals who are neither accused nor charged with delinquent or criminal behavior;
I. Establish an educational program for sharing information about probation with the public and other agencies; and
J. Evaluate program efficiency, effectivenesss, and overall system accountability consistent with recognized correctional standards.

Community Corrections

Correctional programs operating in a community setting are an integral part of a comprehensive correctional system. These include community residential facilities, probation, parole, and other programs that provide supervision and services for accused or adjudicated juveniles and adults. Responsiveness to the needs of victims and offenders and to protection of the public is essential to the success of community programs and services.

Policy Statement: The least restrictive sanctions and controls consistent with public and individual safety and maintenance of social order require that the majority of offenders receive services in a community setting. It is the responsibility of government to develop, support, and maintain correctional programs and services in the community. A screening process to select offenders who can be safely maintained in the community is critical for placement in these programs. Those reponsible for community corrections programs, services, and supervision should:

A. Seek statutory authority and adequate funding, both public and private, for community programs and services;
B. Develop and ensure access to an array of services, residential or non-residential, that adequately address the identifiable needs of offenders and the community;
C. Inform the public and offenders of the reasons for community programs and services, the criteria used for selecting individuals for these programs and services, and that placement in such a program is a punishment;
D. Ensure the integrity and accountability of community programs by establishing a reliable system for monitoring and measuring performance in accordance with accepted standards and professional practice;
E. Recognize that public acceptance of community corrections is enhanced by victim restitution and conciliation programs; and
F. Seek the active participation of a well-informed constituency, including citizen advisory boards and broad-based coalitions, to address community corrections issues.

GLOSSARY

The American Correctional Association has compiled this select group of words and terms frequently used by probation and parole practitioners and other professionals in related fields. There is no official glossary of correctional terminology produced by a governmental agency or national association.

The terms offered here are taken from several sources. We are grateful to the following persons and agencies for allowing us to present these definitions in this PROBATION AND PAROLE DIRECTORY:

- Glossary of Probation Terms, 1978, New York State Division of Probation.
- The Criminal Justice Dictionary, 1983, Erik Beckman, Assistant Professor, School of Criminology, Michigan State University.
- Probation & Parole in Practice, 1983, Dr. Reed Montgomery Jr. and Steven Dillingham, College of Criminal Justice, University of South Carolina at Columbia.
- Dictionary of Criminal Justice Data Terminology, 1976, U.S. Department of Justice.

PROBATION AND PAROLE TERMS

A

Absconder An offender who fails to report for probation, parole or aftercare supervision, and whose whereabouts are unknown.

Accessory Not the actual perpetrator of a felony, but one who in some way was concerned with the commission of it. May be an accessory before the fact by inciting or counseling, or after the fact, by assisting the felon.

Accessory After the Fact One who, having full knowledge that a felony has been committed, conceals it, harbors, assists, or protects the person sought for or convicted of the crime.

Accessory Before the Fact One who, being absent at the time a crime is committed, assists, counsels, cites, encourages, engages, or commands another to commit the crime.

Accessory During the Fact One who fails to interfere or give such help as may be in his power to prevent the commission of a criminal offense.

Accumulative Sentence A sentence passed before the first has expired, to commence upon the expiration of the first.

Active Case A case for which a probation or parole service has been initiated and has not yet been terminated.

Active Supervision A classification for the differential supervision of probationers/parolees in which a minimum number of personal contacts and collateral contacts are required per month.

Acquittal The termination of a criminal action or proceeding against a person in favor of that person.

Addict Any person who regularly uses any habit-forming narcotic drug so as to endanger the public morals, health, safety, or welfare, or who is or has been addicted to the use of such habit-forming drugs as to have lost the power of self-control with reference to his addiction.

Addiction A state of utter dependence on a drug for a sense of physical and mental well-being. Addiction includes habituation.

Adjournment The putting off or postponing by a court of a matter pending before the court until another specified time, sometimes referred to as a continuance.

Adjudication The court act or process of trying and determining issues pending before it.

Adjudicatory Hearing In juvenile proceedings - during a fact finding session the court determines whether or not there is sufficient evidence to sustain the allegations contained in a petition. Juvenile counterpart to an adult trial.

Adjournment A postponing of a hearing or a session until another time or place.

Adjudicate To settle by judicial authority.

Adjudication A judgement or decision.

Administrator of Field Services The person directly responsible for directing and controlling the operations of the adult probation and/or parole field services program. This person may be a division head in a large correctional agency, a chief probation officer answering to a judge, or the administrative officer of a court or parole authority with responsibility for the field services program.

Adult A person who is within the original jurisdiction of a criminal, rather than a juvenile, court because his/her age at the time of an alleged criminal act was above a statutorily specified limit.

Admission The point of entry into a program; during admission processing the offender receives an orientation to the goals of the program and to program rules and regulations.

Affidavit A written declaration or statement of facts, made voluntarily, and confirmed by the oath of affirmation of the party making it, taken before an officer having authority to administer such an oath.

Aftercare Control, supervision and care exercised over offenders released from correctional facilities through a stated release process. (See Releasing Authority.)

Agency The unit of a governing authority which has direct responsibility for the execution of a corrections program, including the implementation of policy as set by the governing authority. For a residential center, this would be the administrative headquarters of the facilities. In a public agency, this could be a probation department, welfare department or similar agency.

Agency Administrator The head of the parent agency that houses or is responsible for the adult field services program; the director or commissioner of corrections under which the adult probation and/or parole field services are constituted; or the chairperson of the parole authority or the judge whose court administers probation.

Alias Any name used for an official purpose that is different from a person's legal name.

Allegation An assertion, declaration, or statement of a party to an action, made in a pleading, setting out what he/she expects to prove.

Antisocial Behavior Behavior reflecting a rejection of social norms and values accepted and considered important by group members. Also, behavior that is disruptive or potentially disruptive to the smooth functioning or survival of a group. In this sense antisocial behavior is determined by outside observers and may include behavior not disapproved by group members.

Appeal A request by either the defense or the prosecution that a case be removed from a lower court to a higher court in order for a completed trial to be reviewed by the higher court.

Appeal Bond Security in a given amount to be posted by an appellant as a requirement for perfecting an appeal.

Appearance The act of coming into a court and submitting to the authority of that court.

Appellant One who initiates an appeal from one court to a higher court.

Appellate Court A judicial tribunal that reviews cases originally tried and decided by lower tribunals. The appellate court acts without a jury and is primarily interested in correcting errors in procedure or in the interpretation of law by the lower courts.

Appellate Jurisdiction The authority of a court to review the decisions of other courts and uphold, reverse, modify, or return them to a lower court for retrial.

Arraignment The appearance of a person before a magistrate in order that he/she may be informed of the charges against him/her, his/her right to counsel, and that he/she may enter a plea and bail may be set.

Arrest The taking into custody of a person so that he/she may be charged with a criminal offense.

Assault and Battery The threat to use force upon another and the carrying out of that threat.

Assigned Counsel An attorney, not regularly employed by a government agency, assigned by the court to represent a particular person(s) in a particular criminal proceeding.

Attorney A person trained in the law, admitted to practice before the bar of a given jurisdiction, and authorized to advise, represent, and act for other persons in legal proceedings.

B

Bail The cash or bond that is provided by the defendant to assure that he/or she will appear at a further criminal proceeding or action. Defendant's failure to appear as promised could result in forfeiture of the bail or bond.

Bailiff A court attendant entrusted with a variety of duties, such as the custody of prisoners under arraignment, the protection of jurors, and the maintenance of order in the courtroom during a trial.

Bench Judge or judges composing a court.

Bench Warrant A document issued by a criminal court in which a criminal action is pending, directing a police officer to take into custody a defendant in the action who has previously been arraigned and to bring him/her before the court. The function of a bench warrant is to achieve the court appearance of a defendant in a pending criminal action for some purpose other than his/her initial arraignment in the action.

Bond A written obligation usually with surety, to ensure that the person will obey the orders of the court.

Bondsman One who provides bond or surety.

Booking A police administrative action officially recording an arrest and identifying the person, the place, the time, the arresting authority, and the reason for the arrest.

Burglar One who commits burglary.

C

Capias A writ authorizing an officer to arrest the person specified therein.

Career Counseling A form of counseling aimed at obtaining productive employment and desired career goals for clients with occupational needs.

Case The activities, contacts, programs, progress and problems related to a client.

Case Conference A conference between those individuals working with a client for the purpose of seeing that court-ordered services are being provided.

Case Load The total number of clients registered with a probation/parole department or officer at a specified point in time.

Case Record Management The systematic control over the establishment, assessibility, utilization, content, security, privacy, preservation and timely destruction of case records.

Case Summary A written record which updates the cumulative case record of a client.

Casework Supervision The function of the caseworker, social worker, or other professional in providing court-ordered or parole field services.

CCH An abbreviation for "computerized criminal history."

Chambers A judge's office where he conducts business not requiring a jury.

Charge A formal complaint, information or indictment accusing a person of having committed one or more offenses.

Chief Clerk The principal clerk who supervises the keeping of records and implements the orders of his/her superiors.

Citation (appear) A written order issued by a law enforcement officer directing an alleged offender to appear in a specific court at a specified time in order to answer a criminal charge.

Classification The identification of supervision cases in terms of particular characteristics and for designated types of probation/parole services in keeping with established criteria.

Clemency The power of pardon, sentence commutation, reprieve and amnesty.

Client A person who receives probation or parole services.

Collateral Contact Direct contact with a person or persons other than the probationer/parolee (e.g., employer, family, friends).

Collections The receipt, disbursement, monitoring and enforcement of support or restitution payments by an agency, also can include fines and reimbursement for costs expended.

Collection Account A case in which support, restitution, fines or other collection services are provided in accordance with a court order.

Commitment The action of a judicial officer ordering that an adjudicated and sentenced adult, or adjudicated delinquent or status offender who has been the subject of a Family Court disposition hearing, be admitted into a correctional facility.

Community Corrections Conditions, sentences or programs involving the placement of offenders in the community rather than incarceration.

Community Liaison Officer A designated agency staff person who works with community service agencies and the agency to insure good cooperation and community relationships and to effect better management of services for clients.

Community Residential Program Community residential programs are housed in structures without security fences and security hardware, or other major restraining construction typically associated with correctional facilities. They are often converted apartment buildings or private homes. They are not constructed as or intended to be detention facilities. (See Nonresidential Programs.)

Community Resources Those social and welfare agencies, service clubs, citizen interest groups, self-help groups, and individual citizen volunteers who have the potential to assist offenders. These various resources, which may be public or private, national or local, have the potential for help ranging from material and financial assistance, to guidance, counseling and supportive services.

Community Resource Management A service delivery approach that emphasizes the role of staff as managers of community resources rather than supervisors of a number of individual cases.

Complaint A formal written accusation made by a person, usually a prosecutor and filed in a court alleging that a specific person has committed a specific offense.

Conciliation Efforts to assist in adjustment or resolution of disputes.

Concurrent Sentences Two or more court sentences, each to be served at the same time.

Conditional Discharge Sentence by the court whereby the defendant is released following conviction for which the sentence is imposed, without imprisonment or probation supervision, but subject to such conditions as the court may determine.

Conditions of Probation Requirements prescribed by the court as part of the sentence to assist the probationer to lead a law-abiding life. Failure to observe may lead to revocation of probation and commitment or incarceration.

Confidentiality The prohibition of unauthorized disclosure of information.

Confidentiality of Records The protection of individual client personal records against disclosure except where authorized by law or court order.

Consecutive Sentences Two or more court sentences, each to be served separately and in sequence.

Contractual Arrangement An agreement, often between a private party and an agency to provide services to offenders in exchange for remuneration.

Conviction The judgment of a court, based on the verdict of a jury, the verdict of a judicial officer or guilty plea of the defendant that the defendant is guilty of the offense.

Conviction Charge The offense of which the defendant has been convicted as distinguished from any charges originally logged against the defendant in the accusatory instrument.

Coroner An official who has authority to hold inquests and act as sheriff in his absence.

AMERICAN PROBATION AND PAROLE ASSOCIATION (APPA)

The American Probation and Parole Association came into existence through the American Correctional Association in an effort to address many of the problems within community corrections. At ACA's 104th Congress in 1974, members of the Probation Committee were charged with developing a separate constitution for a new association. This resulted in the birth of APPA in August of 1975. Its mission statement was: "To Promote Progressive Probation and Parole Practices." This remains the mission of APPA today. The following is provided for those interested in APPA:

WHO ARE WE?

Our membership is made up of practitioners in the professions of probation, parole and community-based corrections, from both the United States and Canada. We are line staff, supervisors and senior administrators. We are educators, volunteers and concerned citizens with an interest in criminal and juvenile justice. We are local, state, regional and federal individuals and organizations united to form a strong and effective network.

Affiliation with APPA is open to any state, regional or national organization whose membership includes individuals directly involved in the practice of probation, parole or community-based corrections.

WHAT DO WE DO?

- We provide a much needed clear voice for the field. We are a network for information and action. Through our periodical PERSPECTIVES we keep our membership informed of current practices and issues
- We sponsor training opportunities for all levels of practitioners
- We conduct the only National Institute uniquely designed for field services and community-based practitioners
- We provide technical assistance through our broad membership network
- We recognize outstanding contributions to the field by administering a national awards program
- Our aggressive Public Information Program informs the media about the many effective and positive aspects of probation and parole programs
- We conduct research and development activities in support of the field with federal and private funding

WHAT DO WE STAND FOR?

APPA is committed to realistic and effective probation, parole and community-based correctional programming. It is our responsibility to convey to the public what it is we do and how this promotes community safety. We must aggressively work together to form effective coalitions to influence policy decisions which impact the field. We must promote high standards of practice that will insure the provision of quality services as well trained and competent professionals.

MEMBERSHIP IS OPEN TO:

- Practitioners in the fields of probation, parole or community-based corrections
- Volunteers
- Concerned Citizens
- Other Criminal or Juvenile Justice Professionals
- Libraries
- Colleges and Universities
- Agencies
- The Corporate Sector

INDIVIDUAL MEMBERSHIPS INCLUDE:

- A fully paid subscription to PERSPECTIVES
- Voting rights in all elections
- An opportunity to run as a regional representative to the Board of Directors or Executive Office
- An opportunity to actively participate in shaping the future of your profession through committee membership
- Discounted registration fees for training events and the annual institute
- Free participation in the APPA Jobs Bank Program
- Discount rental car program
- Participation in an APPA credit card program
- Participation in APPA travel programs

ASSOCIATION OF PAROLING AUTHORITIES (APA)

The Association of Paroling Authorities is an international organization dedicated to excellence in the performance of the parole function. The purpose of the APA as stated in its Constitution is to extend, develop and promote parole work and programs throughout the United States, Canada, the territories and other jurisdictions by increasing public interest and support through conferences and cooperative programs. Additionally, the APA strives to promote high professional standards. The Association of Paroling Authorities is a professional affiliate of the American Correctional Association.

OPERATIONS

The Association works to facilitate communication between paroling authorities through a newsletter that is produced twice annually. The APA sponsors workshops and other training programs to improve the professionalism of the parole system. Announcements of special training programs are distributed to APA members and parole agencies throughout the United States, its territories and Canada.

The Association has ten standing committees charged with the responsibility of carrying out the business of the APA. Each standing committee conducts the business of the Association in the absence of a full-time paid staff. The committees offer an opportunity for a majority of APA members to be directly involved in Association activities.

MEMBERSHIP QUALIFICATIONS

Membership in the Association is open to all members of parole boards in any of the fifty states, members of the Army and Air Force Parole Board, the National Parole Board of Canada and the parole boards of the provinces of Canada, parole boards of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Parole Commission, the District of Columbia Parole Board, and parole boards of the territories of the United States. Eligible for membership are parole examiners, directors, executive secretaries, executive directors, and the support staff of the above agencies and boards, including hearing officers, attorneys, and research staffs. There is also an Associate Membership open to those who have been active members of this association. Associate members are not eligible to hold office.

MEETINGS AND CONFERENCES

The APA holds an annual business meeting each year in conjunction with the Annual Congress of Correction sponsored by the American Correctional Association; a winter meeting is also held with the ACA at the annual Winter Conference.

STRATEGIES FOR SOCIAL SURVIVAL

Film and Video Programs from Simon & Schuster Communications

EPIDEMIC: KIDS, DRUGS, AND ALCOHOL

The nation's top-selling drug information film. Startling up-to-the-minute medical information on the damaging effects of drugs (particularly marijuana) and alcohol. Focuses on the influences of media, popular music, and peers on our attitudes about substance abuse. Produced by Gannett Broadcast Group (MTI).

DRUG INFORMATION SERIES — INHALANTS

Just one of the topics covered in this seven part series. Emergency Medical Service team members, doctors, and lab personnel relate technical information about drug use and users in a fast paced, dramatized format. Deals with the recognition of the topical substance, signs of use and abuse, behavioral effects, and short and long-term dangers. Produced by the J.Gary Mitchell Film Company (MTI).

SUICIDE PREVENTION: To hear their cries for help before it's too late; to recognize and address their problems; S&SC provides a wide range of educational media for and about today's troubled teens:

- IN LOVELAND: STUDY OF A TEENAGE SUICIDE (MTI)
- EVERYTHING TO LIVE FOR (MTI)
- A LAST CRY FOR HELP (LCA)
- AMY AND THE ANGEL (LCA)
- TEENAGE SUICIDE (MTI)
- HEAR ME CRY (LCA)
- SUICIDE: THE WARNING SIGNS (Coronet)

THE WIZARD OF NO

Adult problems are often the result of behavior learned as children. This new program from the award-winning J.Gary Mitchell Film Company speaks to kids in a magical way about self-esteem, tobacco, alcohol, and drugs. Acknowledges the difficulties in making the right decisions — and offers a strategy for success — the power of No.

S&SC offers film and video documentaries and dramatizations on social awareness, crime prevention, staff development, and counseling issues. Programs are designed for audiences ranging from primary-age children through the elderly.
